MacMillan Yields to
Threat of Secretary Wilbur
That He Must Use
Navy Radio Equipment.

GEOGRAPHIC BODY ACTS AS MEDIATOR

Long Wave Length Must Be Used, Instead of the Short Length, as Had Been Planned.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Washington, June 24.—Complications over the radio equipment of the MacMillan Arctic expedition, which for a time threatened to terminate its life, were adjusted today at Sydney, N. S., and tonight the party was said to be preparing to proceed late this week toward its main base at Etah, Greenland.

The adjustment was not reached, however, until Secretary Wilbur had served an ultimatum on Donald MacMillan, leader of the expedition, through Lieutenant-Commander R. E. Byrd, chief of the navy section, that standard, long wave navy radio equipment, which had been left in the United States, must be taken along or the navy section would return to Washington.

Ironed Out by Telephone.
Announcement of an amicable solution of the difficulty through acquiescence in Mr. Wilbur's demands was made here by the National Geographic society, one of the sponsors of the expedition, after a long distance telephone conversation with its representatives in Sydney.

The society's announcement said the navy radio equipment, which Secretary Wilbur regarded as essential to the safety of the naval section, had been left behind because of an oversight. Mr. Wilbur said the department was first informed it had been left behind because neither the Peary or the Bowdoin, base ships of the expedition, had room for it.

The expedition had entered an agreement with the navy department, Mr. Wilbur asserted, to carry the navy long-wave apparatus.

McDonald Wanted Short Wave.

E. F. McDonald, chief radio expert of the expedition and second in command, and president of the Zenith Radio corporation, which made the short-wave apparatus being used by the expedition did not want the navy standard long wave apparatus to be carried.

"He objected to it," the secretary declared, "but we insisted and he finally acquiesced."

The equipment weighs 2,000 pounds and was to have been loaded on the Peary at Boston. It was left behind, however, and when navy officers found it at the dock it was sent by tug to Wiscasset, Maine, where the Peary was to call and be joined by the Bowdoin. Both vessels sailed from the Maine port without the equipment, and the next day Commander Byrd reported to Secretary Wilbur that it had been left behind.

The destroyer Putnam was at once sent to Wiscasset and, picking up the radio apparatus, started for Sydney, N. S., the next part of all of the expedition, where it was due today.

At the same time Mr. Wilbur dispatched an order to Commander Byrd that the equipment should be taken aboard at Sydney or the navy section would return to the United States.

The equipment was regarded by the navy as essential, not only to the safety, but the efficiency of the expedition, to supplement the short-wave apparatus on both planes and ships. As the expedition sailed it was equipped.

COOLIDGE ASKED TO ADDRESS KLAN

Officials of Organization
To Request President To Speak at Meeting of Order on August 8.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Washington, June 24.—Officials of the Ku Klux Klan announced today they proposed to ask President Coolidge to address a gathering of that organization which has been called to meet here August 8.

The announcement was made by L. A. Mueller, a representative of the organization, who recently obtained from Colonel C. E. Sheril, superintendent of public buildings and grounds, permission to hold a parade in this city on that date.

The way in which the invitation will be extended to the president has not been decided upon.

The president, it was pointed out, last year honored the Holy Name society by reviewing its procession and by delivering an address to its members on the ellipse and Klan leaders believe the same consideration is due their organization. It was emphasized, however, that the Klan will not base its invitation to the president on the honor he has shown the Holy Name society or any other organization.

Colby Raps Holiday Attitude
GRAVE ISSUE AT STAKE, DEFENSE COUNSEL SAYS
Surrounding Evolution Trial

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Knoxville, Tenn., June 24.—The issue involved in the trial of John T. Scopes for alleged violation of the Tennessee law prohibiting teaching of evolution in public schools of the state is "grave in character" and embodies principles "at the base of our security of happiness and American citizenship," Bainbridge Colby, former secretary of state and associate counsel for the defense of Mr. Scopes with Clarence Darrow, of Chicago, and Dudley Field Malone, of New York, said today.

Mr. Colby, speaking for the defense attorneys, said:

"I cannot account for the tone as reflected in comments appearing in the daily newspapers regarding the approaching Scopes indictment trial. People should be interested in the outcome, but I cannot understand the attitude regarding the issue."

"The issue is grave in character, embodying principles at the base of our security of happiness and American citizenship. A mind that is fettered by law or that is otherwise hampered is like a compass nailed down. A needle that is to play readily ceases to exist as a compass when it becomes stationary."

"A mind, like a compass, loses its character as a mind when it becomes fettered or otherwise hampered by existing legislation or bigotry. This republic is founded not only on education, but on universal and compulsory education."

"We have encountered and have been surprised to see a holiday atmosphere surrounding the approaching trial. The people are pleasantly worked up and enjoying the momentary focus of national attention."

"We do not understand this attitude. It arises from the shocking and abnormal character of the legislation out of which this indictment has developed, which we certainly view as one of the most serious questions which could possibly arise to challenge the ability of the citizenship to conduct rational self-government."

"Americans are shocked and amazed that such an issue could arise in one of the oldest and greatest states of the union. But it is unnecessary to comment on that phase of the question. The important phase of the issue, despite the rustic setting in which it is being fought out, is enough to attract the attention of all thinking people."

RECALL INVITATION EXTENDED DARROW TO SPEAK TO BAR

Presence Before Convention of Tennessee Lawyers
Might Be Misconstrued, President Says.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Memphis, June 24.—Lovick P. Miles, president of the Tennessee Bar association, tonight announced that he had withdrawn an invitation extended today to Clarence Darrow, Chicago attorney, to address the organization at its annual convention here Friday.

Mr. Miles said his action was taken because the presence here of Mr. Darrow, who is a member of the defense counsel for John T. Scopes, Dayton, Tenn., school teacher, charged with violating the law against teaching the theory of evolution in Tennessee schools, might be misconstrued.

The telegram sent to Mr. Darrow tonight read:

"Regret developments make desirable the withdrawal of invitation to address the Tennessee Bar association here June 26. An explanatory letter will follow."

"Lovick P. Miles, president."

Mr. Miles said that the suggestion that Mr. Darrow should address the lawyers came from Knoxville today. The invitation was extended and accepted shortly after this suggestion was received.

"While Mr. Darrow is a most distinguished lawyer of whose signal ability and success the country is well aware, after further consideration of the matter, it was determined that the time is inopportune for him to address the Tennessee Bar association," said Mr. Miles.

"While, of course, we would observe the amenities of the occasion and his address upon the cause and treatment of crime would be of absorbing interest," he continued, "nevertheless the invitation to him and his presence might be misconstrued."

"It is desirable to have at the annual meeting the largest possible attendance of lawyers, the utmost harmony and no cause for precipitating an acrimonious discussion of any matter or man. The primary object of the annual meeting is consideration of matters of general interest to the profession and these matters are, as a rule, the subject of standing committee reports. Since there developed serious questions of inviting Mr. Darrow, the invitation was withdrawn."

DETECTIVES FIND STOLEN JEWELRY VALUED AT $500

A diamond lavalliere, said to have been stolen from the residence of Newman Lasser, 810 Ponce de Leon avenue, Tuesday night and valued at $500, was recovered Wednesday by Detectives J. J. Chester and M. P. Warren. The jewelry was found in a Decatur street pawn shop. No arrests have been made.

The lavalliere was stolen while members of the family were absent from the residence, the theft being discovered upon their return home. The thief had entered the home by jumping the front door.

A pistol was reported stolen, Wednesday night, from the residence of Mrs. H. C. Wells, 174 Sells avenue, according to police.

A loaded .45, containing $50 in cash and valuable papers, was stolen from the room of H. W. Bishop, Wednesday night, in a downtown hotel, he reported to detectives.

A musically inclined thief Wednesday took a set of orchestra bells, the property of J. C. Durham, of Luckie street, according to a report to detectives.

SAR WITNESS FALTERS IN PEN BRIEBERY CASE

W. F. Wall Fails To Pin
Actual Receipt of Money on Accused Ex-Officials of Institution.

RELATES DETAILS OF ALLEGED PLAN

Former Deputy Warden
L. F. Fletcher and Ex-
Chaplain Thomas P.
Hayden Fight Charges.

Admission by W. F. Wall, star witness for the government, that he did not know that L. J. Fletcher, former deputy warden at the federal prison and Father Thomas P. Hayden, former chaplain at that institution, ever received any part of $7,000 he testified had been paid by wealthy prisoners for special privileges, was the feature of the first day of the Fletcher-Hayden trial which opened Wednesday in the United States district court before Judge R. T. Ervin, of Mobile, Ala., sitting for Judge Samuel H. Sibley.

Wall's testimony was the first introduced by the government to sustain its charges of conspiracy and after he had told details of his part in a plan to grant privileges to Mennie Kessler and George Remps, wealthy bootleggers, for a consideration of $7,000 which he said had the sanction and approval of Fletcher and Hayden, he testified under cross-examination that he had no knowledge that either Fletcher or Hayden ever received a share of this sum.

According to Wall's direct testimony he was working as a clerk in the office of Deputy Warden Fletcher in December, 1923. He said he was a prisoner and had been sentenced in Mississippi for publishing false bank statements. He testified that Edward J. Sweeney, a prisoner serving a term for automobile theft, approached him shortly after Mennie Kessler and Morris Sweetwood, two wealthy prisoners from New York arrived in the prison. He testified that Sweeney and the question of paying for an easy assignment at the prison came up. He said he later discussed the proposal with Father Thomas P. Hayden and also told Deputy Warden Fletcher of the offer of $10,000 for these privileges.

Conspiracy Alleged.
At the time, he testified, he told Fletcher of the offer of the prisoners Fletcher told him to go ahead and he would approve anything the witness and Father Hayden did in the making or whether or not Father Hayden received the $10,000, he did not know. He said that the $10,000 was reduced to $5,000 and that after this sum was paid by a representative of Kessler that Kessler was given an easy assignment in the prison. He testified that he had a hard assignment in the rear storeroom as first planned. He declared the $5,000 was paid to Mrs. R. K. Walcott, 95 Avon avenue. He said George Remps later paid $2,000 for special privileges and that the $7,000 was "split up" between him, Father Hayden and Fletcher.

He got $2,000, a special package containing $4,000 was left with Mrs. Walcott to be paid to an unidentified person, and the rest, $1,000, was to go to Father Hayden, the witness declared.

The package containing the $4,000 was for Fletcher, according to the testimony of Wall. Under cross-examination he admitted that he did not know whether or not Fletcher got the money or whether or not Father Hayden received the $1,000.

Under cross-examination Wall stated he was released under parole after serving 25 months. He said he was brought back to Atlanta which was held at midnight at the home of the warden of the federal prison, at which United States District Attorney Clint W. Eager, Assistant Attorney General Donohue and Father Thomas P. Hayden were present. He admitted he had signed a statement at this conference detailing his testimony in the case and after he had signed this statement he was allowed to depart.

Wall identified a "dummy" assignment sheet which showed that Kessler first had been assigned to the rear storeroom.

HOUSE WILD, SENATE SERENE AS LEGISLATURE 'HOPS OFF'

EVERY MOTION SECONDED HALF DOZEN TIMES

BY H. C. HAMILTON.
For 59 more days, the ladies and gentlemen who were so fortunate—or unfortunate, depending upon how you observe the situation—to have themselves elected to the Georgia legislature, will be with us, monkeying with the state's legal code. They got down to business Wednesday when organization of house and senate was completed, and now the hopper is ready to receive the flood of guesses on what is wrong with Georgia.

Milling, gesticulating, perspiring men cluttered up the floor of the house the first day of the session. They seconded everything that was done with an abandon that was engaging. One second to a motion did not suit these gentlemen from Georgia; they seconded in wholesale lots. Rather startling was the greeting to a casual visitor to the chamber of the house. Microphones, through which radio listeners were permitted to hear what was going on, have been connected to a battery of horns suspended from the ceilings. The effect was to magnify the voice of the speaker in such a fashion that one has the feeling that a radio is bringing in the voice. That is true, even though it is perfectly apparent that the speaker is doing the talking right in front of the observer.

There were many women mixed in the gallery—pretty ones, too. On the floor, also, there were some, including, of course, Miss Bessie Kempson, one of Fulton county's representatives in the house.

The senate offered quite a contrast to the restless lower house. While the latter was in a turmoil of organization, the upper body was serene. Hundreds of millions of dollars are loaned annually by bankers on feeblest licensed warehouse receipts and many co-operative marketing organizations depend entirely on these receipts to carry on their operations, federal attorneys asserted today.

Judge Barrett in passing sentence said: "It is very, very important that these receipts should be in every way protected."

COMMITTEE SLATES AND REFORM MOVES BEFORE LEGISLATORS

Mountain of Rocks Topples
SECTION OF WYOMING FOREST SMASHED IN SPLINTERS
Into River and Creates Lake

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Cheyenne, Wyo., June 24.—A mountain of rocks, moving at an incredible speed, toppled into the Gros Ventre river, in the heart of the Teton mountains in western Wyoming yesterday, according to a message received here tonight.

A section of the Teton National forest was smashed to splinters, several herds of cattle were swept away and many buildings lost, the advice said. The river has been dammed by the great heap of earth and rock and a great lake is forming, according to the message. In a short time, it will create a lake seven miles long and a mile wide and probably hundreds of feet deep because of sharp declivities on either side of the stream at that point.

Shortly after the strange occurrence, according to the message, which was from J. H. Jones, local manager of a telephone company at Jackson, Wyo., the river was 200 feet deep at the point just above the disintegrated mountain.

Jones, according to the dispatch, riders in that vicinity, who raced to was informed of the phenomenon by Jackson with the news.

One horseman, who narrowly escaped injury from flying debris when the mountain collapsed, declared that the huge natural dam resulting therefrom caused the swift, shallow stream to fill to the 200-foot depth in a period of five minutes, according to the report. He escaped by springing astride his horse and galloping up a mountain side to safety. At that time the great reservoir caused by the cave-in was only partly filled with water, he said, according to Mr. Jones.

Several automobile tourists were held up by the slide, but were not on the dangerous side of the mountain. No injuries or loss of life was reported. Whether an attempt will be made to drain the reservoir was not made known.

CAILLAUX FORCES FRENCH CHAMBER TO VOTE BUDGET

Deputies Are Stampeded
Into Accepting His Plan
After Debate of Only
Two Hours.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Paris, June 24.—M. Caillaux, in his expressed determination to have France's 1925 budget voted before July 1, made a great step forward today.

The finance minister introduced the budget in the chamber of deputies and literally stampeded that usually deliberative body. He succeeded in disposing of the general discussion inside of two hours, and the deputies then voted the budgets of the ministries of finance and justice in about the same elapsed time.

Sessions Through.
After jamming through the chamber 146 articles of the ministry of finance budget and 112 of the ministry of justice, he then announced the chamber would meet tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock, again at 2:30 p. m., and said it must have the budget ready to go before the senate on Friday morning.

The finance minister scored an unprecedented success in the French parliament when he succeeded in restraining seven deputies from delivering prepared speeches.

The budget, as it now stands, shows an excess of expenditures over receipts of 1,032,000,000 francs. It is the expectation of the finance minister to balance the budget by the application of various taxes.

Socialists To Oppose Plan.
The socialist party's long-threatened break with the government, which once more failed to materialize Tuesday on the Moroccan question, is again expected on the question of M. Caillaux's financial measures. The socialists insist that France's financial salvation is impossible without a capital levy, and they are opposed to M. Caillaux's plan for general increase in direct taxation.

The national council of the party will meet at the end of the week, and at it the socialist members of parliament will be given definite instructions.

By OTIS PEABODY SWIFT.
Chicago, June 24.—William D. Shepherd, the innocent victim of persecution, William Scott Stewart, Shepherd's attorney, contended when he began defense arguments Wednesday afternoon in the trial of the lawyer for the murder of Billy McClintock.

"Money is at the bottom of this case," Stewart told the jury, talking simply and clearly as if elucidating a complex problem to a group of eager youngsters. "Billy McClintock had a lot of money, and there are people who are jealous because he gave it to Mr. Shepherd. That's why Mr. Shepherd is being persecuted and persecuted."

Stewart, a keen-faced young man whose voice is almost caressing, rose once to fervid oratory, and thereby startled his client.

He had been concentrating his attack on "Dr. Charles C. Faiman, who confessed that he gave Shepherd a phony fever which led to the murder of Billy. He heaped bitter scorn on the man's testimony, and then sharply fired two oratorical demands at the jury box.

"If you believe Faiman," he said; "if you believe that Shepherd went out and consulted him about germs, then I say to you—hang Shepherd."

"If you believe that Shepherd murdered an innocent youth—hang him."

That "Hang Shepherd" had burst from Stewart's lips with the explosive quality of a rifle shot.

All day long the accused man had heard Assistant State's Attorney George E. Gorman thunder that hanging must be Shepherd's fate. The stout defendant had twitched in his seat.

BURTS CONVICTED IN WAREHOUSE ACT NOTED SCIENTIST CLAMORED BY DEATH

Warehouseman Is Found Guilty in U. S. Court on Charge of Fraudulent
Issuance Cotton Receipts.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Albany, Ga., June 24.—The conviction of A. M. Burt, cotton warehouseman, on a charge of fraudulent issuance of cotton warehouse receipts in the United States district court here late last night is regarded by department of agriculture officials who assisted in the prosecution as "of profound significance" to farmers, co-operative marketing associations and to the banks, they declared today.

This conviction was the first under the United States warehouse act, whose purpose, government officials say, is to provide for a warehouse receipt of such character as to make it acceptable to bankers as security for loans made to farmers and others handling agricultural products.

The court fined Burt $100. After the prosecutor, pointing out that no lower had been sustained through the defendant's acts, recommended a light sentence.

Hundreds of millions of dollars are loaned annually by bankers on feeblest licensed warehouse receipts and many co-operative marketing organizations depend entirely on these receipts to carry on their operations, federal attorneys asserted today.

Judge Barrett in passing sentence said: "It is very, very important that these receipts should be in every way protected."

MEASURES TO SPEED HOUSES PROPOSED

Neill and Ennis Head
House and Senate—Rus-

Other High Posts.

BY RALPH T. JONES.
With preliminary organization effected Wednesday at the opening session of the 1925 general assembly, members of the state house and senate today will settle down to the first 60-day biennial session grind with attention centered upon coming committee appointments and on a number of proposals tending to eliminate confusion, duplication of effort before committees and eleven-hour jams which have marked previous sessions.

Today will also bring into the legislative hopper the first bills of the year. Chief among these will be the measure introduced in the house by the entire Fulton county delegation to provide for the building of viaducts by the city of Atlanta over the state-owned W. & A. railroad tracks at Pryor street and Central avenue.

Speaker W. Cecil Neill gave no indication Wednesday as to when his committee appointments would be ready for announcement, but in accordance with past custom the final list is not expected before July 1 at the earliest. President J. Howard Ennis, of the senate, is expected to have his committees ready in a few days, the fewer number of his side simplifying this task, as compared with Speaker Neill's problem in the house.

Rumor among members of the house Wednesday gave the names of four well-known members as in line for four of the most important committee chairmanships.

Dykes Slated For Post.
E. B. Dykes, of Dooley county, will hold the important post of vice chairman of the rules committee, it is believed. Inasmuch as the rules committee automatically becomes a steering committee during the closing days of the session, this is one of the most important posts in the house organization.

Roy Harris, of Jefferson county, is understood to be selected as chairman of the ways and means committee. Representative Fermo Barrett, of Stephens, is favorably mentioned for chairmanship of the appropriations committee, and W. R. Jones, of Meriwether, who it is believed, he reappointed chairman of the committee on constitutional amendments, the place he held last session.

Five out of the six principal offices in the two houses were filled at Wednesday's session without opposition. President Ennis, of the senate; Speaker Neill, of the house; Speaker Pro Tem R. B. Russell, Jr., of the house;

Payment of European Debts Dependent on Reparations, Trade Congress Informed

French Banker Ridicules Idea That Transfer of Money From Germany Will Ruin Allies.

Brussels, June 24.—Warning the United States and other creditors of Europe that if the transfer problem prevents Germany paying reparations, it must also prevent Europe paying her war debts, Maurice Lewandowski, vice president of the Bankers' syndicate of France, Wednesday assailed the Anglo-Saxon theory of transfer difficulties in a speech before the International Chamber of Commerce congress.

Lewandowski scathingly ridiculed the difficulties of the Dawes plan operation as presented by Anglo-Saxon speakers. With witty sarcasm he attacked the theory of Sir Josiah Stamp and Franchet Despret that receiving reparations would ruin the allies economically and industrially.

The speaker characterized the theory as "this terrible microbe of transfer, which, according to these authorities, when transfused from the blood of a debtor to the blood of a creditor, does untold harm."

Ridicules Transfer Problem.
Until the performance of the surgical operation known as the Dawes plan, Lewandowski said, the microbe had not been discovered.

"The microbe had not been discovered in 1872," he said, "when France was forced to transfer 5,000,000,000 francs war indemnity to Germany. Apparently it did not harm Germany then."

"We hope this terrible microbe, which prevents transfer from Germany also will exercise its influence in inter-allied debts," Lewandowski concluded, intimating that if reparations could not be paid, war debts could not be paid for the same reason.

He said that the problem of debts had become largely a German-American one, anyway, the implication here being that America would receive payment from her debtors only in proportion to the sums received by those debtors from Germany.

American Replies Today.
Continental delegates applauded Lewandowski loudly.

After listening in silence for three days while European speakers injected the discussion of war debts into the congress deliberations, the Americans have decided that the time has come to set forth the viewpoint of American business men. John O'Leary, of Chicago, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, will speak Thursday on economic restoration, and he will tell Europe plainly of the terms upon which American business men would participate in restoration, with several pertinent paragraphs devoted to the feelings of American business men regarding war debts.

VETERANS' CONVENTION ADDRESSED BY HINES

Omaha, Neb., June 24.—Discussion and consideration of the problems of legislation, hospitalization and rehabilitation of America's 50,000 wounded World War veterans, represented by more than 1,000 delegates from all sections of the country, comprised the program of today's business session of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, in national convention here.

The veterans heard of the progress of the United States Veterans bureau during the past year from General Frank T. Hines, director, who said that while there was much to be done to fulfill America's obligations to her war veterans, still the bureau had been enabled by legislation, better organization and better co-operation to extend a more efficient service to the disabled.

It seems assured that the committee will go on record Friday for a program favoring completion of the permanent hospitalization program at emergency speed, liberalization of the law governing the reinstatement of war invalids by the disabled, permanent compensation for cases of arrested tuberculosis, removal of limits for the beginning and completion of training, so that those who have thus far been unable to start training can be completely rehabilitated, foundation of permanent medical corps in the veterans' bureau, and for larger appropriations for better food in the ten national homes.

HANCOCK NEGRO DIES OF WOUNDS IN JAIL

Sparta, Ga., June 24.—(Special.)—Willie Brooks, negro, charged with attempting to kill R. S. Dennis, superintendent of the extensive Dickson plantation, Howard Carr and R. M. Rankin, his assistants, died yesterday afternoon in the Hancock county jail where he had been confined since his capture.

Brooks escaped after shooting the three white men and a county-wide search was made for him, rewards amounting to several hundred dollars being offered for his capture. He was caught about four weeks ago in the lower edge of the county where he had been hiding in the swamps. He resisted arrest, however, and after a gun battle, it was found that a bullet from one of the officer's pistols had struck his left eye ball, blinding him completely. Brooks died from complications arising from this wound which was at first thought not to be serious.

AMERICAN REPUBLICS TODAY.
Continental delegates applauded Lewandowski loudly.

After listening in silence for three days while European speakers injected the discussion of war debts into the congress deliberations, the Americans have decided that the time has come to set forth the viewpoint of American business men. ## SEMI-ANNUAL STAGED AT ROME

Rome, Ga., June 23.—(Special.)—With a large number of visiting delegates the annual meeting of the Rome district of the Woman's Missionary society of the Georgia conference is now in session at the South Broad Street Methodist church.

The first day of the meeting was turned over to the work of the junior organizations, and today and tonight the adult work will be given special attention. Mrs. L. K. Smith, of Carrollton, who has been the efficient secretary of the district for 10 years, reported a great advance in the work of the district. Fourteen new mission societies have recently been organized with the help of Miss Bert Winter, of Elberton district.

The blue ribbon reward was given the South Broad and Trinity Methodist juniors.

The presiding elder and a number of Rome ministers attended the meeting.

COLUMBIA DRIVE ON.

Rome, Ga., June 23.—(Special.)—Rome Freshmen are presented an opportunity to show Georgia interest in the general welfare of the progress of their own church, said Dr. S. W. Gill at the opening dinner to workers in the Columbia Seminary on Tuesday evening at Armstrong hotel. The workers' dinner was part of the scheduled program to provide information regarding the project of establishing Columbia Theological Seminary on Georgia soil.

The goal of $6,000 announced by the Rome executive committee, recognized as reasonable part of the fund to be raised in Rome. The workers began solicitation Wednesday morning.

WASHINGTON ALARMED BY NEW DEVELOPMENT.

Washington, June 24.—(By the Associated Press.)—Official advisers from China today increased the concern which officials are watching developments there. While report has reached the state department from Peking on the latest Chinese note to the diplomatic body, and while official word was lacking today as to the immediate situation in Canton, there is no doubt that officials here have cause for anxiety and see little prospect for early subsiding of the anti-foreign wave sweeping parts of China.

In the absence of definite word from Chang Meyer at Peking on the new note, comment was withheld on the reiterated insistence of the Chinese provisional government that extraterritorial treaties be revised. The fact that Mr. Meyer had not resorted to emergency methods for rapid communication with Washington, however, was taken in some quarters as indicating that he and his diplomatic colleagues had not abandoned hope in their dealings with the central authorities.

The most alarming aspect of the Peking diplomatic correspondence, as seen here, was the probability that the provisional government's stand might encourage the disorderly and riotous elements engaged in anti-foreign demonstrations. The situation at Canton and elsewhere was already so tense that apparently little would take little impetus to bring about conditions that could be dealt with only by force, which all of the powers are striving to avoid.

CHINESE ASK REVISION OF FOREIGN TREATIES.
Peking, June 24.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Chinese government, in a note to the foreign diplomatic corps, today argued for the revision of old treaties giving foreigners special privileges in China.

The first note from the Chinese government says that it is convinced that the relations of all nations with China can be made more cordial and their rights and interests can be advanced without rather than with the enjoyment of extraordinary privileges and immunities given the foreign powers by existing treaties with China.

Hopes for Readjustment.
The note expresses the hope that the foreign governments will be convinced that a readjustment of China's treaty relations on an equitable basis is necessary in satisfaction of the legitimate aspirations of the Chinese people, who will do much to consolidate friendly relations. It recalls that the existing treaties were concluded long ago, under circumstances that did not permit free discussion; that conditions obtaining when these treaties were negotiated do not now exist and that the time has arrived for them to be changed.

The note declares that at the time China entered the world war with the allies, she was encouraged to hope for a definite improvement of her international status.

"Great, therefore, must be the disappointment of the Chinese people," the note said, "when after the great war for a common cause has been won, China's own status should remain unimproved and in some respects inferior to that of the defeated nations."

"In none of the defeated nations do we find the existence of extra territorial courts, concessions, leased territories and externally imposed tariffs."

Efforts at Treaty Revisions.
The note refers to Chinese successful efforts at the Versailles peace conference and at Washington to obtain revision of her treaties with foreign powers.

In a second note, also sent to the diplomatic corps today, the Chinese foreign office reiterated its insistence upon the "thirteen points" advanced by the Chinese delegation at the recent abortive conference at Shanghai, and expressed the hope that the new conference to discuss general Chinese questions, proposed by the foreign diplomats, may be held speedily.

The note insists upon the release of Chinese arrested at Shanghai during the recent strike troubles and suspension of sentences imposed upon them. It asks for "an apology" and for the "redemption" of the mixed court at Shanghai. It calls for the reinstatement of strikers, the improvement of the working conditions of Chinese and for Chinese participation in the municipal council at Shanghai, as well as for "liberty of speech and assembly," and for the dismissal of the secretary of the Shanghai municipal council, S. K. Rowe. The note declares these points are necessary for the settlement of the Shanghai incident, and as a further basis for permanent peace says it is absolutely necessary to revise the "unequal treaties" by

Governor Walker Delivers Inaugural Address Saturday

The joint session of both branches of the Georgia general assembly, to be held in the house chambers Saturday at 12 o'clock, at which time Governor Clifford Walker will deliver his inaugural address, will mark the end of the first term of his second year.

The inaugural address will give an outline of his administration policy for his second term; the record of the past two years sets out the accomplishments of the administration to date.

Among accomplishments of the administration during the past two years, there are three outstanding measures enacted which are perhaps of greater importance than numerous items that claimed the attention of the general assembly during his first term.

These items are establishment of the state auditing department, the state department of revenue, and adjustment of the method in distribution of the state funds after being allotted by the legislature, and the enactment of the law providing $500,000 was provided for construction of an additional unit to the tuberculosis sanatorium at Alto, and the means of paying Confederate veterans their pension.

With the organization work of the house and senate completed at the initial session yesterday, Speaker W. Cecil Crenshaw, beginning his third term as the presiding officer of the house,

150 REFUGEES REACH
HONGKONG FROM CANTON.

Hongkong, June 24.—(By the Associated Press.)—Carrying about 150 Cantonese refugees, a steamer from Canton, the steamer Honam, arrived here today. At Canton, the crew of Chinese stokers deserted and were replaced by men from the U. S. S. Asheville, a gunboat stationed off Shanghai, the foreign settlement at Canton.

A British gunboat, the Moorhen, conveyed the Honam and her refugees to Whampoa. The refugees include a score of Americans, mostly missionaries. The government has requested the British to accommodate refugees from Canton.

The arrivals today include A. H. F. Edwards, who was shot in the right knee yesterday when Chinese demonstrators fired in the direction of foreign settlement. Y. G. Murrell, who was shot in the right shoulder, and Mrs. Charles Lammert, who was injured in the left foot.

The refugees state that yesterday's demonstration at Canton was intended as a show of military preparation, as Chinese in the procession were armed and carried rifles and machine guns.

MAY TREATY FOREIGNERS INTO TREATY PORTS.

London, June 24.—Foreigners in China may be summoned to gather in the treaty ports where they could be protected from the Chinese according to information from British sources in the Orient.

These reports indicate that the Chinese situation is serious and becoming more so.

Concentration of foreigners at treaty ports would be the first step of the powers, the question of active intervention coming up later. It is felt that it would be necessary to insure the safety of foreigners first, as intervention were discussed before they were brought under protection.

Marines, sailors, volunteer corps and the available troops would be called upon to protect the civilians. One battalion of the British East Surrey regiment is among the troops.

7 CHINESE EXPELLED
BY PARIS AUTHORITIES.

Paris, June 24.—(By the Associated Press.)—Seven Chinese, implicated in the storming of the Chinese legation here last Sunday, were expelled from France today.

The police arrested a youth, Yen Toh-mu-sien, said to be the leader of the militant communist Chinese who forced Minister Tchong-Loh, sign four documents relative to the Shanghai revolt. The Chinese envoy refused to prosecute, but the French authorities decided to proceed energetically with the case.

ANTI-FOREIGN STRIKE
ASSUMES GRAVER ASPECT.

Washington, June 24.—The anti-foreign strike in China has assumed a graver aspect as a result of the insistence of unruly elements to concentrate on Kiangsoo, the state department was advised Wednesday by American Consul Leroy Webber, at Amoy, the foreign settlement at Amoy is called Kiangsoo.

Naval protection for the international settlement there has been requested by the Amoy municipal council, since Chinese authorities informed the consular body that protection of life and property in the settlement could not be guaranteed. Police at Amoy are insufficient to protect foreigners and property, the council announced.

Webber said a boycott and a possible strike appears likely Thursday. The has announced that committee appointments will be made Monday.

Following these appointments, the various committees will get together, and on their reporting back to the respective branches of the general assembly, will mark the actual beginning of the task facing the two bodies.

Indications at present point to a flood of bills being introduced, calling for all manner of legislation.

With the convening of the general assembly, a large number of new faces are expected in the direction of the rostrum of the presiding officers. The senate is composed of new members throughout while the house is composed of about 60 per cent new members.

Speaker of the House Neill has not lost any of his old-time vigor in presiding over that body. His sounding of the gavel cannot be drowned, and with the installation of loud speakers in the house, the call to order can be heard outside of its chambers. It has come to pass where it is even a delicate thing for members to congregate and carry on their conversation in whispers before small microphones placed at strategic points on the speakers' stand and elsewhere in the house.

Amusement was created at the conclusion of the session by a group of representatives gathered too close to a microphone near the speakers rostrum, only to discover later that they were heard in all parts of the chamber.

boycott has already commenced at interior points, he said.

General Chang has advised American authorities in China that all of the 100 Americans at Chang Chow are safe and well.

A cable from Consul Carleton, at Hongkong, dated Monday, said the strike, which started last Saturday, had not become general. He denied strikers in Hongkong were manifesting a bitter anti-foreign sentiment such as that in Canton.

BRITISHERS WARNED TO SEEK FOR SAFETY.

Hong Kong, June 24.—(By the Associated Press.)—Britishers employed on the Canton-Kowloon railway arriving here today said they had been warned privately by Chinese friends to seek safety, because "the Chinese are determined to kill one foreigner for every Chinese."

BAPTIST MISSIONARIES AT SHANGHAI ARE SAFE.

Richmond, Va., June 24.—(By the Associated Press.)—Baptist foreign missionaries in the Shanghai district and those reported safe, "with excitement abating and the outlook encouraging," in a cablegram received today by J. F. Love, corresponding secretary of the foreign mission board of the Southern Baptist convention.

The message was a response to inquiries called by Mr. Love yesterday to Shanghai and Canton. He said no reply had yet come from Canton.

ped only with short-wave apparatus, except for a loop-wave set on one of the planes for communicating with the base ships.

The apparatus now to be taken aboard the Perry at Sydney will be set up on that ship and be used to communicate with the planes when in flight.

The National Geographic Society made public tonight several messages from the Bowdoin and the Perry, picked up by radio amateurs in New York, Massachusetts and other points during the run from Wisconsin to Sydney. The messages reported all well and told of life aboard the ship. Two-way communication was established in the case with the Bowdoin, and the signals were said to be strong and easily readable.

FALTERS ON STAND

storage room but this was erased and "library" was inserted in its place. He admitted that frequent changes of this kind were made in the "dummy" ship.

The name of the "go-between" who is alleged to have paid the money to Mrs. Walthall for Kessler was brought out in the testimony. Wall said Mrs. Walthall was an old friend of his whom he had known in Mississippi prior to his conviction in the bank case. He said she frequently visited him at the federal prison and declared he was the one that suggested the $5,000 bribe to Kessler and the $2,000 from Remus be paid to Mrs. Walthall.

The $4,000 package was to be turned over by Mrs. Walthall to an unidentified person and she was to ask no questions, Wall testified. The money was to be placed in an envelope and handed to this person when he called at her residence for it.

Wall declared it was understood that Fletcher or a representative of Fletcher was to be the "unidentified person."

Attorney William Schley Howard, representing Fletcher, asked Wall if the whole affair "was not a shake down, conceived and executed under the leadership of Sweeney," but the witness denied this. He was asked if he and Sweeney were not the men who framed the whole bribery plan and got the money but he again answered in the negative. He admitted that he got $2,000 of the money and stated he had not been indicted for this and was still out of prison under parole.

Sweeney sat in the court room with several government investigators including Franklin Dodge and when Attorney Howard asked that he be removed from the room if he was to appear as a witness in the case District Attorney Hager stated that he was not going to use Sweeney as a witness.

It is understood that Mrs. Walthall will be placed on the stand in the trial Thursday by the government. Albert E. Sarasin, former warden at the federal prison, who was convicted last fall on charges of conspiracy to accept bribes, is in Atlanta and also expected to appear as a witness in the case. Other witnesses summoned are Mammie Kessler, George Remus, Morris Sweetwood, C. C. Tuten, Fred Haas, Carl Haas and Richard Bailey, all inmates of the federal prison. Other witnesses not in the prison who have been summoned are Mrs. George Remus, Edward J. Sweeney, Graham Baughan, L. W. Williams, Ernest Haas, R. N. Treadway, Capt. J. F. Madden, McElroy Smith, Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Walthall and Jack Redpath.

Fletcher was represented by Attorneys William Schley Howard, Hooper Alexander and W. Paul Co. over. Father Hayden was represented by Marion Smith of Little, Powell, Smith and Goldstein, United States District Attorney Clint W. Hager conducted the prosecution.

The jury in the case was obtained after Judge Ervin had declined to enter a plea of former jeopardy entered by attorneys for Fletcher. The former jeopardy question was argued for more than an hour, it being contended that Fletcher was tried and acquitted on the same charges and contained in the present indictment.

Judge Ervin in ruling out the former jeopardy plea stated that Hayden and Fletcher are being tried on a conspiracy charge and that if one is guilty the other is guilty and if one is acquitted the other must be acquitted. He based this ruling on the ground that it would be impossible for one person to conspire with himself. It was brought out at the trial that the witness Wall, star witness for the state, is really named Wall and not Hall, as has been printed after Judge Ervin had declined to enter a plea of former jeopardy entered by attorneys for Fletcher. ## RAIN PREDICTED TO BREAK HEAT

Belated showers which have been scheduled for Atlanta during the past two days will put in their appearance today, the local office of the United States weather bureau announced Wednesday at the close of another scorching day that witnessed a maximum mercury reading in the 90s.

The highest point reached by the thermometer here was 92 degrees, which was recorded at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. This was five degrees lower than the season's record of 97 degrees, but it was six degrees higher than Tuesday's maximum.

The whole state witnessed a mild day Tuesday and rain was reported in various sections.

Crops throughout Georgia are generally in need of rain though serious drought conditions are not felt except in remote areas, according to weather reports.

Better Films Body To Bid Farewell To Former Chief

Special interest attaches to the monthly luncheon of the Atlanta better films committee today at the Robert Fulton hotel, in that it marks the departure of a loved figure in film circles and the arrival of a new-comer to Atlanta movie-dom.

Mrs. Porter Langston, for many years chairman of the better films matinees given every Saturday for Atlanta's young people, is leaving for Florida, and the meeting today will be in the form of a farewell from the club members.

Three Georgia schools—the Georgia School of Technology and the Georgia Military academy, of Atlanta, and Riverside Military academy, of Gainesville—are included among the honor schools designated by the war department as it became known Wednesday in dispatches reaching Atlanta from Washington. A board of officers of the United States army made the announcement.

Proposed Mooring Mast Site Inspection Scheduled Monday

Lieutenant W. M. Dillon, of the United States navy air service, will be in Atlanta Monday to inspect proposed sites for construction of a dirigible mooring mast at Lakewood park and the municipal airplane landing field, it was announced Wednesday by V. H. Krieshaber, chairman of the committee on aeronautics of the Southeastern Fair association.

According to present plans a 160-foot mooring mast will be erected at Lakewood park for use when the Los Angeles, the world's largest dirigible, comes here during the Southeastern fair this fall. It later will be dismantled and moved to the municipal flying field, near Hapeville.

Approval of the location must be obtained from a navy official before the naval department will make final plans to have the giant ship stop here, it is said.

Lieutenant Dillon now is on a trip from Washington to Miami and will stop in Atlanta on his return trip.

Family Squabble Ends With Fines In Police Court

Domestic difficulties were aired Wednesday afternoon in police court before Recorder Pro Tem. Murphy M. Holloway when six residents of South Humphries street were arraigned under charges of disorderly conduct, growing out of what police termed a "free-for-all" fight Wednesday morning. Each participant drew a fine of $25 and costs.

Defendants were Mrs. R. C. Cantrell, 40, of 223 South Humphries street, at whose home police say the fight was staged; her daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Hammond, 19; a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Lena Cantrell, 19, and the latter's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Golden, 40 and 38 years of age, respectively, and their 16-year-old daughter, Gertrude Golden.

The evidence presented to Judge Holloway was conflicting but, according to the court, all were guilty of disturbing the peace.

Arrests were made by Patrolmen W. A. (Bill) McKinney and R. E. (Eddie) Carroll. "This is the aftermath of a quarrel last Sunday between Mrs. Lena Cantrell and her husband," Officer Carroll stated. According to Officer Carroll, police were summoned last Sunday to settle a dispute that savored of a fight between Mrs. Cantrell and her husband. "Everything at that time indicated that it would be impossible for the young couple to live together in peace and they decided to agree to disagree," he said.

According to the police, the fight Wednesday morning started in the form of a dispute as to ownership of a clothes line in the rear of Mrs. R. C. Cantrell's home. Mrs. Lena Cantrell had claimed it and was in the act of taking it down, police say, when Mrs. Hammond, daughter of the elder Mrs. Cantrell, interfered. A heated argument followed and Mrs. Cantrell and her mother were drawn into a battle of words which ended in pugilistic exhibitions as police arrived.

3 Georgia Schools Get Honor Mention In Military Work

Three Georgia schools—the Georgia School of Technology and the Georgia Military academy, of Atlanta, and Riverside Military academy, of Gainesville—are included among the honor schools designated by the war department as it became known Wednesday in dispatches reaching Atlanta from Washington. A board of officers of the United States army made the announcement.

Georgia Tech is the only college in the state to receive the honor of the designation of "distinguished college." This is the highest honor awarded by the war department to colleges throughout the country in which military science is taught. It is a stamp of approval of military leaders of the country, and competition is keen among the schools where the respective officers' training corps units are located.

An annual inspection is held, and the schools showing the most proficiency in military science are selected by the board of inspectors, which is sent out from Washington by the war department.

Preparatory schools are designated as "honor military schools," under the same rigid inspection rules and competition. Georgia Military academy and Riverside Military academy are included in this list.

YOUTHS HAVE NARROW ESCAPES FROM DEATH

Two youths narrowly escaped death in accidents Wednesday, one receiving a fractured skull and is reported in a critical condition, according to surgeons, who state that he only has a "flicking chance" to live.

The boy, Dean Martin Crouch, Jr., five years old, of 36 Ripley avenue, was injured when he ran suddenly from the sidewalk in front of an inbound Pine street car, and although the car was moving at slow speed, the motorman did not have time to stop it before it struck the youth, according to reports.

Robert Beckham, 15, whose address was given as Pine street, was the other to be hurt. He was struck down by an automobile as he fell from another car he told doctors at the Grady hospital. He was badly cut and bruised about the head, arms and legs.

No report of the accident was made at police headquarters.

The Crouch youth was rushed to St. Joseph's infirmary. He has several lacerations and bruises about the chest and legs, besides a fractured skull.

MEMORIAL CAMPAIGN LEADERS JUBILANT

With the campaign for sale of Confederate Memorial half-dollars just getting well under way, and with several southern states yet to be organized, the momentum already attained will take the total sales to the neighborhood of 1,000,000 coins, it was reported to the board of directors of the Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial association, at their regular bi-monthly meeting held Wednesday at the Atlanta Biltmore.

The report of the coin campaign was made by G. F. Willis, chairman of the coin committee of the board, and was supplemented by a report on behalf of the bankers' committee, organized by Robert F. Maddox.

The encouraging view of the campaign taken by Mr. Willis was shared by Mr. Maddox, who said the sale of coins would continue during the summer with extension of organized activity into the southern states not yet organized, as well as into the northern states.

New York Sale Opens.
In this connection it was reported that a campaign in New York city to sell 250,000 coins was opened this week with the backing of Bernard M. Baruch, who recently accepted election to the board of directors of the memorial, and under immediate direction of Robert Adamson, former Atlanta and former fire commissioner of New York, as campaign manager.

"I feel that the success of the Stone Mountain Memorial is definitely assured," said Mr. Maddox.

Thomas H. Preston, of Chattanooga, another new director, attended the meeting and made a report on the sale of coins in his state, where he is state chairman. He proudly stated that the state of Tennessee is now in the lead, with a sale of 100,000 coins, which is a record for any state.

Colonel W. L. Peel, chairman of the sculptor committee, and L. W. Roberts, Jr., engineer of the memorial, reported that Augustus Lukeman, the sculptor, is rapidly approaching completion of his design for the central group.

Other Reports Made.
A general report was made by Hollins N. Randolph, president of the association, covering all phases of the work, and E. Rogers, vice president and business manager, reported on the audit recently completed by Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Company. Joseph A. McCord, treasurer, reported a satisfactory report, it was said.

The next regular meeting of the board of directors will be held the fourth Wednesday in August.

A vote of thanks was given Mr. Randolph, Mr. Rivers, officials of the Federal Reserve bank and Mrs. Rogers Winter, who recently resigned her office as the association staff, for their services to the memorial.

RUSSIA INFORMED GERMANY TO ENTER PACT OF SECURITY

London, June 24.—Germany has announced to Moscow her definite intention of entering the European security pact, which implies joining the League of Nations, thus repudiating the Russo-German agreement to pursue identical courses relative to the league.

After lengthy expostulations, Russia is reported to have accepted the situation, intimating that she would be compelled to send an observer to Geneva to prevent complete isolation from western Europe.

LEADERS AT ST. PAUL

St. Paul, Minn., June 24.—(Special.)—Georgia held her lead in many things today at the Kiwanis international. The feature of the afternoon business session was the far more than half-million-dollar report of International Treasurer Henry Helms, of Atlanta, the fraternity handling that sum last year, including $30,000 for the monument erected by Kiwanis to Warren Harding, charter member of Marion club, the only service club membership he accepted. The monument is at Vancouver, the last place he publicly spoke, to be unveiled in September. Kiwanis is a United States and Canada organization.

Georgia featured this morning in consideration of the report of the agricultural committee, leading all the states in the movement to better relations between farmer and city man. The Georgia delegation today informally talked over plans for a miniature Georgia products exposition at next year's convention. It was suggested that the 75 clubs in Georgia in 1926 take one suitcase full of compact samples of products from their region competitively to show Georgia to the United States and Canada. New Jersey has scores of samples of her manufactured products in the show windows of St. Paul.

On St. Paul's market today are Georgia peaches, melons, peanuts and peanut products, cotton seed oil products, white and oil shortening, even Georgia cabbage and Chatham county new Irish potatoes, but with no sign to tell they are from Georgia. Even Georgians did not recognize them. The suggestion is to label "37" Georgia products at the next international convention.

Georgia district meetings were first in the newspaper reports, and altogether Georgia is topping the list of Kiwanis state delegations. Several Georgians participated tonight in the unique mid-winter ice carnival at South Minneapolis arena. John H. Ross, of Milwaukee, was the unanimous choice of the nominating committee for the next president of the Kiwanis international earlier in the day. The election will take place tomorrow.

Leaders of 1925 State Legislature

Upper row, left to right: Captain J. Howard Ennis, of Milledgeville, senator from the 20th district, elected president of the senate without opposition; Senator James A. Dixon, of Millen, successful candidate for the place as president pro tem. of the senate; Senator H. P. DeLaPerriere, of Hoschton, who, though defeated by Senator Dixon as president pro tem., is considered one of the strongest members of the upper house and is expected to be a leader in constructive legislation this year. Bottom row: R. B. Russell, Jr., of Barrow county, chosen speaker pro tem. of the house of representatives without opposition; E. B. Moore, elected clerk of the house without opposition, who is starting his twenty-third year of service in the general assembly, and Representative Fernor Barrett, of Stephens county, who this year is slated for the important post of chairman of the appropriations committee.

With the Legislators

BY PAUL STEVENSON.

United States Senator William J. Harris arrived in Atlanta Wednesday and visited the capitol where he witnessed the inauguration of the new legislative session. The senator shook hands with the members of the two houses and hung up his usual 100 per cent record by calling every one of them by their first name.

"Recently I sold my tonsils to a doctor in Washington and I would not buy them back at any price," the senator said. "I am enjoying unusually good health now and expect to spend several pleasant months in Georgia."

Senator Harris has established an office in the federal building, where he is occupying one of the judge's rooms while not being used for court purposes.

Former State Senator James H. Boykin, of Lincolnton, was shaking hands with his old friends in the Kimball House lobby Wednesday night.

"This new legislature looks like it is composed of a fine bunch of fellows and I believe most of them are here to try to do something for their state this summer," he said.

Alvin Glucke, of Taliaferro county, who used to represent his district in the state senate, is back this year as a member of the house. He was one of the pioneers in the movement to pass a law abolishing the pistol.

"The Constitution has certainly done a great work in its campaign against the pistol," he said. "This educational work has been invaluable and I believe this assembly should pass the anti-pistol bill by a big majority."

Representative Israel H. Evans, of Screven county, is back in the legislature and greeted his old associates cordially Wednesday.

"Where in the world did you get such a name as Israel?" one of his friends asked. "That name came over in our family nearly 300 years ago when the Salzburg Dutch settled in old Effingham county," he explained. "It has been borne by some member of our family ever since that time."

State Senator J. F. Pruitt, of Lumpkin county, is one of the old house members who has been promoted to the senate this year. He dropped out one term, but could not resist the temptation to come back this year, he said.

J. E. Palmour, of Gainesville, who made the race for the state public service commission two years ago, is back in the legislature as representative from Hall county.

Joe Gaston, county commissioner of Butts county, who managed Governor Walker's campaign two years ago, looked in on the legislature Wednesday. He is a strong advocate of good roads measures.

SENATE SIDELIGHTS

BY BEN COOPER.

When Howard Ennis was elected president of the senate Wednesday morning, he modestly disappeared into the corridors of the capitol and a "searching party" had to be sent out to escort him to the rostrum. In the "posse" were Senators E. D. Cole, of the forty-second; H. P. DeLaPerriere, of the thirty-third, and J. A. Dixon, of the seventeenth. President Ennis' popularity was clearly demonstrated by the burst of applause that greeted his reappearance in the senate chamber.

It was one Confederate Vet against another when the election of a messenger came up for consideration, and as the senate couldn't honor both by dividing the post, a vote was taken. The job fell to "Uncle Dave" Strother. This makes "Uncle Dave's" sixth year as messenger. He won the place this time over M. G. Murchison, by a vote of 27 to 15. "Uncle Dave" enlisted in the Confederate army at the age of 17 years, and went through the entire war, following Lee and Jackson until captured near the close of the struggle. In one engagement, he crossed a creek dry shod over the bodies of federal soldiers, he told the writer Wednesday afternoon.

United States Senator William J. Harris was a visitor to the senate chamber Wednesday, mingling with his friends from over the state. He was with Miss Jeanette Rankin, first woman congressman, from Montana, for a while.

Resolutions of deep sympathy and condolence were adopted by the senate to Senator F. B. Ricketson in the death of his wife. The resolutions were sent to Senator Ricketson by telegraph.

The senate adopted resolutions of sympathy to Senator-Elect J. D. Clifton, of the 10th, who broke his wrist several days ago. The resolutions expressed the hope he will soon be able to attend the session.

Rev. J. W. G. Watkins, blind Confederate veteran, was reappointed chaplain of the senate for his thirty-third successive year. The committee recommending his reappointment was composed of Senators A. G. Foster, of the twenty-eighth; C. O.

If I owned a Motor-boat

I'd see that there were plenty of good flashlights aboard. I'd use them to examine the engine or gasoline tank, without danger of fire.

I'd use them to find landings at night; to pick up buoys; to signal with, in case of distress; to make fast at dock.

Yes, I'd consider flashlights as important as life-preservers. They are life-preservers—they separate darkness and danger. I need hardly add that they would be ever-ready flashlights—the best! —(adv.)

Thoughtful housewives are serving them after meals

They certainly do the trick

"Try a few of these," he said after they had finished a rather rich and heavy luncheon. "We always use them after meals."

It was a new idea to their guest.

"Oh, Life Savers," she said. "These will just hit the spot!"

"And since Jim started using Pep-o-mint Life Savers this way," his wife added, "he's never been troubled with indigestion anymore."

Indigestion is a miserable thing. So many people suffer this way. If they only knew that simple old method our grandfathers used—peppermint.

It sounds very simple and old-fashioned. But Pep-o-mint Life Savers really do the trick. Try them after meals when that heavy, lousy feeling comes over you—or to relieve that irritating distress of indigestion. Long Distance Service Is Better Than Ever

THE scope and efficiency of long distance telephone service has made our nation one big friendly neighborhood. To talk across the continent is almost as easy as calling across the hedge to your next-door neighbor.

Such an extensive service, available day and night, and stretching from the metropolitan centers to remote hamlets, requires that every link in the highways of speech be constructed and maintained to meet the maximum need.

The long distance lines in Georgia are a part of this nation-wide system, and also serve a vital need in the business life of the State, and the South. They must be constructed, maintained and operated so that the messages they carry may be heard clearly five miles or thousands of miles away.

Every day an average of 10,500 long distance calls are originated in the State, and in m i l e - fingered operators speed them to their various destinations.

More and more the long distance service is depended upon for business and social use as the public becomes familiar with its value, efficiency and low cost.

To care for this growing demand will require an expenditure of $305,000 this year for reconstruction and additions to the long distance system in Georgia alone.

Altogether ten new circuits will be added requiring the construction of 641 miles of new circuit.

The long distance service is better than ever before. The transmission is clear and the increased facilities enable the operators to handle a large volume of calls with speed and accuracy.

Merchants, manufacturers and business men are utilizing this service to increase business and reduce expenses. Why not try it?

COMMITTEE SLATES
BEFORE LEGISLATURE

Secretary D. F. McLaughlin, of the senate, and Clerk E. B. Moore, of the house, were chosen without contest.

Dixon Is Winner.

In the race for president pro tem of the senate, Senator James A. Dixon, of Milton, defeated his opponent, Senator Herman D. DeLaunay, of Roschita, by 31 to 14 votes.

In his inaugural speech after his election to the speakership, Speaker Neill said he construed his reelection for a third term as speaker as a complete refutation of charges made against him, and declared he assumed the office "free and untrammelled, mindful only of my duties and obligations to you and through you to the people of Georgia."

Speaker Neill appealed to the members not to flitter away the time of the house on frivolous propositions and political dickerings and declared that absenteeism had been the great handicap to the functioning of previous assemblies. He urged every member to be in his seat every day during this first session under the new biennial system.

Speaker Neill also urged that the rule empowering the committee on rules to fix the calendar for the last seven days of the session should be amended to lengthen this period during which the rules committee acts as a steering committee. While Speaker Neill did not mention any specific time in this recommendation, it is known that an amendment which has been prepared for submission to the house makes the period the last fourteen days of the session instead of the last seven.

rules of the house, which will be asked include a proposal to forbid introduction of bills calling for appropriations during the last 30 days of the session, and another amendment requiring the appropriations committee to report out all its bills at least fifteen days before the end of the session.

It is believed that adoption of these changes in the rules will largely do away with the last-minute jam of legislation which, in the past has made closing days of the session a wild scramble for passage of vital legislation. It is believed that the new rules will remove danger of non-passage of appropriation bills before the end of the session.

Under a resolution introduced Wednesday, two days of the session would be set aside for the hearing of requests for appropriations from heads of state departments and state-supported institutions. It was stated that this is intended to conserve time in eliminating the flood of requests which the legislature usually receives to pay visits to various institutions in different parts of the state, and also to help the appropriations committee in its work of hearing these special pleas for funds. The resolution passed the house but is a joint resolution and has yet to pass the senate.

The house is not expected to get down to its regular work until after appointment of committees. This morning the first task on the calendar after the roll call is the drawing of seats. Names of the different counties are drawn, and the delegations, as their names are called, choose seats they will occupy for the session.

Inaugural Address.

The governor's inaugural address is slated for Saturday before a joint session of both houses, and his annual message and recommendations will be given later at another session, probably some time next week.

Wednesday morning, after the house had been called to order at 10 o'clock by Clerk Moore, Rev. S. R. Beck, pastor of Grace Methodist church, offered the invocation, and Justice Marcus W. Beck, of the state supreme court, administered the oath of office to the members in groups of ten.

Davison Sworn In.

Representative J. E. Davison, of Peach—Georgia's 161st county—had the honor of being the first representative from Georgia's newest county to be sworn in.

Representative John M. Murrah, of Muscogee, presented the name of Speaker Neill as a candidate for the speakership. Speaker Neill is also from Muscogee. The nomination was seconded by a score of members who spoke in the highest terms of the speaker's service during his previous two terms in that office and his four terms as a member of the house.

After the unopposed election of Speaker Neill, Clerk E. B. Moore was placed in nomination for the place as clerk in the house. This was the only nomination for this place.

R. B. Russell, Jr., of Barrow county, was elected speaker pro tem, also without opposition.

A contest developed, however, over the election of doorkeeper. On the first ballot J. G. Bennard, of Webster county, received 70 votes; E. C. Lawthorn, of Butts county, 3 votes; S. J. Mitchell, of Fulton county, 26 votes; N. H. Sledge, of Troup county, 69 votes; and J. H. McElroy, 14 votes. On the second ballot, Mr. Bennard was elected with 100 votes to 68 for Mr. Sledge after all other candidates had withdrawn.

Hooks Rejected.

C. M. Hooks, of Wilkes county, was rejected messenger, receiving 107 votes to 7 for M. L. Dukes, of Butts county.

The committee sent to notify the governor that the house was organized and ready for the transaction of business consisted of Representatives

Lawmakers Called To Order for 1925 Session

The house of representatives in session at the state capitol on Wednesday, the opening day of the 1925 session and the first under the new system of biennial sessions. W. Cecil Neill, shown at bottom, was elected speaker for the third successive time. He is shown here calling the house to order for announcement of the result of a roll call soon after organization of the house and senate Wednesday morning.

be discrimination between amusement."

Representatives Roy E. Harris, of Jefferson, and J. P. Wilhoit, of Warren, are reported as joint authors of a proposal to consolidate the educational systems of the state. Mr. Harris said his aim was not particularly to economize, but to eliminate duplication and to eliminate some of the agricultural colleges and devote money hitherto appropriated for their support to the state university.

The house will meet this morning at 10 o'clock, while the senate will convene at 11.

zation efforts, with oratory spouting as this or that representative arose to nominate somebody for something or to second someone's nomination, the senate was proceeding more serenely and without the assistance of a large gallery.

"The senate will be at ease," the president said, leaning back in his seat—and the senate certainly was at ease. Organization apparently had proceeded to the point where it was practically over. So the senators sat back: wished for a cool breeze, and the house of representatives still was at it.

Hot Times Ahead.

There is sympathy for these ladies and gentlemen who have, by their own decree, ordained that the Georgia legislature must meet in the summer heat. The house of representatives' chamber never was built for refrigeration purposes, and the same may be said of the senate chamber. There undoubtedly will be days during the 1925 session when the lawmakers will wish they had made it winter instead of summer, but they—and the public—may be cheered by the fact that not until 1927 will there be another session of the Georgia legislature unless it is called together in extraordinary session.

Miss Jeannette Rankin, formerly a member of congress from Montana, paid a call to the legislature Wednesday. She wants something done about laws for the protection of children and was interviewing a few of the house and senate members. Miss Rankin is a landholder in Georgia. She owns a peacan plantation of some size in south Georgia, so, being a taxpayer, she has some right to urge her reforms on the Georgia legislature.

Governor Clifford Walker has sent word to house and senate that he will appear before a joint session Saturday and deliver his inaugural message. He undoubtedly will have

FULTON SALARY MEASURE UPHELD

The act of the 1924 legislature which places officers of Fulton county, or any other county having a population of more than 200,000, on a salary instead of a fee basis, was held constitutional by the Georgia supreme court Wednesday unanimously upholding the decision of Judge John D. Humphries, who denied an injunction sought some time ago by W. H. Abbott, Fulton county tax receiver.

Mr. Abbott had declined to accept his salary after passage of the act, and asked an injunction to prevent operation of the law.

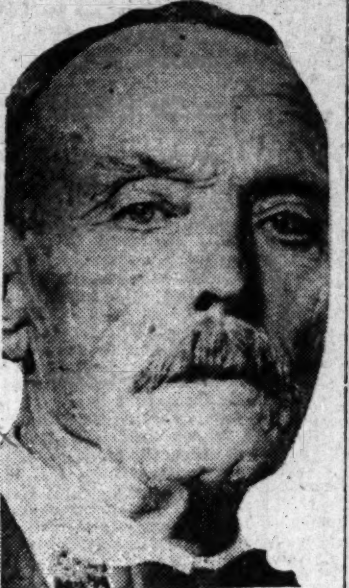

The court ruled that the act did not specify any particular county, since the way is open to any county to attain a population as large as that of Fulton; that it is not a special law, but is applicable generally, and that no levy of taxes will be necessary to provide funds to pay the salaries, inasmuch as fees paid into the offices will be used for salaries.

Several other points raised by Mr. Abbott were rejected by the court as without merit.

Layton Supports War on Malaria And Outlaw Gun

Dr. T. S. Layton, representative from Liberty county and a leading citizen of Hinesville, has actively assumed the responsibilities of his position as a member of the house, of which he will undoubtedly be one of the leading figures.

He will not do much talking, nor consume much time in debate, for he is quietly inclined. He is, however, a deep student and thinker, and when he says anything he knows what he is talking about. He is one of the strongest factors in southeastern Georgia and is highly regarded not only by his own constituency, but by all that part of the state.

Dr. Layton located in Liberty county 32 years ago, going from Cartersville, where he was reared. He entered the practice of medicine in Liberty county and for a quarter of a century has been one of the most prominent physicians in that section. He is now retired from active practice and enjoys the esteem and confidence of his people.

Check Pistol Evil.

"There is one measure proposed for consideration at this session of the general assembly in which I am deeply interested," said Dr. Layton. "That is the suggestion to pass a law to put an end to the pistol evil as far as it is possible by law to stop it. It is a barbarous practice and the remedy is to absolutely outlaw the pistol. Thousands of lives would have been spared in Georgia had it not been for the ready pistol. I am willing to go the limit to put a stop to it."

"Concerning tax matters, this question merits the most careful consideration of the general assembly. Georgia must go forward. We must properly sustain our state institutions, and we must meet our obligation to civilization just as our sister states are doing. Georgia is a wealthier state than either North Carolina or Florida. Yet both of these states will go ahead of us if we do not quicken our step. There is no richer part of Georgia than that in which I live. It offers inducements incomparably better than are offered either in Florida or North Carolina. We must do something to attract attention to our wonderful resources and to the marvelous opportunities that are offered by Georgia."

Anti-Malaria Measure.

"Another thing the legislature should do is to get actively behind the state board of health in its campaign to eradicate malaria in Georgia. It can easily be done, but it will take money to do it. It is not mean to say that to the northern part of the state as to the southern part there is less malaria in houses than in low lands, but it means everything there and we count upon our brothers in the northern part of the state to join us in a movement to eliminate this unnecessary evil, which is costing not only many lives but hundreds of millions of dollars a year in wasted man power."

"Under the proper direction this can be done, and there should not be a case of malaria in Georgia. This is one of the biggest questions of the day, and its solution is of tremendous significance to the state."

AWNINGS DOWN, CITY HALL CROWD MUST SWELTER

When a city law interferes with the comfort and convenience of city officials it holds good just the same. Awnings which guard the city's employees by keeping the torrid rays of the sun out of the windows of the city hall had been hanging a long time, Glenn Dewberry, custodian, Wednesday, took down the dirty canvas to have it washed.

At this stage, Mr. Dewberry's attention was called to the city ordinance passed last year which prevents putting up of awnings above the first floor on any building, not exempting the city hall.

Dewberry went to the mayor with his troubles, and was advised that the ordinance is in force, and that the awnings could not be placed in their former position.

"We want our awnings," cry the employees.

"See the mayor," says Mr. Dewberry.

"Here is the law, read it," replies his honor, the mayor.

LEGISLATOR HURT IN AUTO CRASH EARLY WEDNESDAY

Nat A. Winship, representative from Bibb county, Wednesday morning was injured painfully but not seriously, when a machine in which he was riding with a friend collided with another automobile driven by Earl White, Jr., of 149 Lee street, at Lee and Oak streets. Mr. Winship is here attending the 1925 session of the Georgia legislature which opened Wednesday morning. He was treated by a doctor, who said his injuries were not serious. They consisted mainly of a smash on his head caused by flying glass, and minor bruises.

Another transfer is that of Captain Thomas E. Guy, 22d Infantry, who is to leave Fort McPherson and report for duty at Camp McClellan, Alabama.

GOVERNOR PLEADS FOR TAX REFORM

Governor Clifford Walker took his appeal for tax reform to the chamber of commerce Wednesday when he addressed the weekly forum luncheon.

The ad valorem business of taxation has broken down, the governor declared, and something must be done to bring revenue to a point where the state can build more and better schools, provide funds for a greater health department and improve the state's highways. These funds, he thought, must be produced from intangible or invisible property which is not now being taxed.

"To increase the tax burden of a man who is paying taxes now on his tangible property would amount to practical confiscation," the governor said, and expressed the belief that the proper way to increase the state's revenue would be to place a tax on incomes.

"I would have that law written into the constitution of the state of Georgia as an amendment," the governor declared, "so that it would be solid and irrevocable for many years, so that the business of the state would be protected by its provisions."

West Atlanta District Conference Opened Wednesday Morning

The West Atlanta district conference opened in Cosmopolitan A. M. E. church Wednesday morning. Rev. L. A. Mary D. Strickland was elected secretary of the conference. A modern Sunday school was conducted by Dr. Townsley at the afternoon service.

Addressees were delivered by Rev. J. A. Hadley, Rev. P. W. Greatheart, Rev. John Harmon, Rev. B. V. Thornton, Rev. H. D. Canaday, Rev. J. T. Wilkins and others.

Bishop J. S. Ellinger will deliver an address at 11 o'clock today.

Other features of the program for Thursday will be the report on conditions of rural Sunday schools.

TRUST AND WAVER NOT:

other enactments of interest and benefit to the whole people, being among the outstanding high lights.

In all of these accomplishments the legislature of 1923-24 should have its measure of credit. It cannot be overlooked, too, that many things that should have been accomplished—especially revision of taxation and better provision for the state's institutions—were not accomplished.

On the whole, however, the administration has been a success, and it is hoped, with all political cross currents eliminated, the next two years may be fruitful of a completed program, so that Georgia may take her rightful place at the head of the procession of progress in the southeastern states.

NOT THE MAN—THE TYPE.

Anent the full and frank discussion of the 1926 governorship race, in which many Georgia editors are just now engaged, the Griffin News has the following to say under the editorial caption, "The Constitution 'Out' for Black."

"The Atlanta Constitution, that rock-ribbed old Georgia newspaper that so many Georgians love, as well as respect, is climbing aboard the 'Eugene Black for Governor Band Wagon.' While 'The Constitution' does not pledge its support to Mr. Black's friends in their effort to elect the business man to this high office, still this paper places itself in a position to support him later, if he does make the race. Mr. Black continues to state that he will not run, that he does not want the office and all that, but he admits as does every other sensible man, that Georgia needs a successful business man and not a politician in the governor's chair. Eugene Black's friends and supporters may have to throw his hat in the ring for him, but it'll be there when the voting starts."

The Constitution is not "out for Black," nor is it "climbing aboard" any person's "band wagon."

It does advocate, however, fearlessly and vigorously, a business man of the type of Eugene Black for governor.

It does advocate what Georgia needs most—more business and less politics in government.

It does advocate the same progressive business policy in operating a state that an astute, conservative but aggressive and honest banker would employ in the successful conduct of his bank; or that a prosperous, expanding manufacturer would employ in conducting his industry.

It does advocate the same business-government policy that called Angus McLean, the banker, manufacturer and farmer, to the executive offices in North Carolina.

Mr. Black has urged that his name not be used in connection with the next race for governor, protesting sincerely that he has not the remotest idea of entering, or permitting himself to be entered in the race.

He is a business man, and a busy man. He means what he says.

It would be a great day for Georgia and Georgia's future, however, if Eugene R. Black, or one of his type, would consent to make the personal sacrifice in the interest of service.

But the Constitution has no candidate for governor.

It has a fixed conviction as to what kind of a citizen should be governor. It has named Mr. Black merely as the kind of a man that fits that mold. That is all.

OPENS THE WAY.

In his New Hampshire address in defense of his crusade to modify the present archaic rules of the senate, Vice President Dawes not only discussed the issue with a new line of unanswerable logic, but agreed that such modifications might be made in order to provide majority closure on all questions which affect ordinary legislation, and at the same time permit unlimited debate, or minority obstruction, of such proposed legislation as involve constitutional questions.

If this can be done—and it is not difficult, as questions are fundamentally defined in the organic law—then the only objections of the southern senators will have been removed. They have agreed, as did Senator George, of Georgia, that reforms are necessary, the Georgian believing that the organization of a newly-elected congress immediately after the certification of the November elections will provide the remedy.

All have based their objections on the protection that the present rules give the south, particularly against those extremists of other sections who even seek legislation of a nagging and humiliating nature—such as the Lodge force bill, the Dyer anti-lynching bill, and the Tinkham reapportionment bill.

Vice President Dawes, mindful of the position taken by the southern senators called upon those who see in the power of minority obstruction in the senate a defense against federal encroachment upon state rights—

"To propose some modification of the rules, which, while providing majority closure on all questions which affect ordinary legislation, will permit unlimited debate upon those few occasions when legislation involving alleged encroachments upon the constitutional rights of the states is under consideration."

This should be done, and with the vice president's open-mindedness in the present rules by which a minority can force trading and trafficking in juggling legislation—through prolonged and irritating filibusters—can be brought to an end.

Southern senators should take up the vice president's challenge, and prepare a modification program to meet their objections to a complete closure, and yet assure the country of majority government.

GOVERNOR WALKER.

The first two-year term of Governor Clifford Walker will come to an end at noon Saturday, June 27, at which time he will be inaugurated for the second term to which he was elected in 1924. His inaugural address will outline his policies for the future. His first administration is history—and it is a history of many creditable and outstanding accomplishments.

If nothing more could be credited to his administration than the enactment of the biennial session amendment, the inauguration of a state auditing system, the establishment of a revenue bureau, the authorization of the Alto sanitarium, the improved financial sheet of the state treasurer—these, and these alone, would distinguish his administration as one of service. But there are also many minor but important accomplishments, the uniform negotiable instrument law, absent voters law, abolition of the fee system, conservation of fish and game by an extended system, and

Where the Dreamers Dwell.

I. It's the finest country in the world. Where the dreamers dwell. They wake from wondrous visions. With wonder tales to tell. And soon, beneath the desert skies, You see a wonder-city rise.

II. The world moves on unheeding. Or bids them dream again. But Time and Tide speak far and wide— This story dream in vain! God dreamed of worlds, and worlds were born.

Don't Bring the Country Back. When you embark in the auto for a picnic in the country, don't try to bring the country back with you by stripping it of its summer foliage. If you'll leave it there a while longer, the city will grow up to it and take in all its needs of it. So just be patient.

The sun may well be wasteful of fire; he has worlds on worlds to burn.

The Feller in a Hurry. He hasn't time to worry. And when about the world a-runnin' wrong. He doesn't give a sigh. To the storm a-sweepin' by. To him the rattlin' thunder is a song.

He's up and away. At the breakin' of the day. A hurrah-chap in winter And a hustler of the May!

He knows the time is speedin' While the world's work is needin' While wanderers by the wayside drowse and dream; Reapin' time or sowin' It's go! an' keep a-go! In lightning speed the roadway with its gleam.

He's up and away. Like a brother of the day. A hurrah-chap in winter And a hustler of the May!

The Leading Ones. Here is a list of "the ten greatest Americans," as compiled by the Ottawa (Kan.) Herald:

"The man who climbed Pike's Peak to carve his initials in the highest rock."

"The American who ate an oyster."

"The lowman who the other day rushed up to King George and said 'Mitt me, king.'"

"The original William Jennings Bryan man."

"The traveling man who makes Buffalo once a week but has never seen Niagara Falls."

"The owner of a complete set of Horatio Alger first editions."

"The citizen of Los Angeles who doesn't like the climate and says so."

"The man who presented Carrie Nation with a keg of beer."

"The politician who admitted that the better man won when he was defeated for an elective office."

"The father who told his wife's relatives that he thought his first born was homely."

Get Ready! "Joy comes with the morning!" And then you'll have your chance. He has his fiddle with him And he'll play for you to dance.

The Hopeful View. It's a cheering prospect for that section to which the Tifton Gazette calls the attention of the doubting ones as follows:

"Watch land values in this section begin to rise. People who have been saying they wished somebody would come along and relieve them of their real estate holdings will be holding on to them and refusing offers before six months have passed. Place a valuation on your land, sell some of it, and hold the rest for better times. If you have more than you need or are able to properly take care of."

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Lord Lee, of Farnham, protests against the type of American films shown in England and calls them "rubbish" because they do not in the least represent American social life. A survey, however, of the American-produced films which enjoy the greatest popularity in England reveals that the British public is not so deeply interested in those featuring expensive and attractive females, but rather in those showing red-blooded scenes from the great open spaces of the west; and it was the hero of many a rough-riding scenario who was recently hailed by immense crowds in the streets of London. In reality the wild country held by the American people is a Sunday school picnic. The British in Canada, Africa, Australia and to a lesser extent in the real wild lands inhabited by pioneers, red-coated mounted police, prospectors and the like. When American film companies plan a new wild west episode they go to Canada. The Canadian government has never set up a restriction against British companies and, therefore, if the British film companies failed to capitalize their opportunities, no blame can be attached to the Americans for seizing upon the chance. The Germans some time ago also cried out against the American film invasion. But they fought back valiantly. Not by entering a competition in "rubbish," but by pitting quality against American military might. They slowly gained ground. The number of German films on Broadway will increase a good deal next season.

Consulting Labor Again.

Signor Mussolini announces that for the next session of parliament he will invite the "labor" committees in the different Italian factories to send delegates and representatives for a discussion of the industrial and economic condition of the kingdom. This is a significant move. Signor Mussolini, as an old-time laborer, knows that there is nothing more dangerous than driving a labor movement underground, even if it is radical in tenor. The case of Russia serves as an illustration. There the shop committee or soviet grew in strength and power while suppressed until they suddenly emerged from their subterranean hiding places and upset the government by instituting their own

How About It, Folks? The census man is here. And it would boost good cheer, we say. At each house and of each room. He'd ask, "Have you a sense of humor?"

Creating Envy. Frank—"So you don't believe that women dress to please men?" Leonard—"I know they don't. They dress to tease women."

Parlor Games! Mother—"Ruth is on Gene's lap in the parlor." Father—"Thank heavens! Then she will soon be off our hands!"—Gertrude.

Ruinous Luxury. "The reason this country is going to the dogs," asserted Uncle Ike, "is because people are getting so highly toned that they won't wear their old clothes even when they go fishing."

Divine Sanction. Ethel, aged four, had told a lie. That night her mother told her to ask the Lord for forgiveness. "Dear Lord," prayed Ethel, "please forgive me for tellin' a lie today but dear Lord if you'll be so kind as 'gittin' a lickin' as I was you'd lied too. Amen."

Black Bawled. Down in the colored belt of Arkansas, a political convention was in session. The chairman chosen to pilot the gathering through the maze of parliamentary procedure, was the only white man present. "I moves you, Mr. Chairman," called a lighter skinned delegate from the rear of the hall, "I moves you to hold on 'till I rises to a pint of order." The chair recognized the latter. "What is yo' point of order?" "Didn't the elec' yo' as chairman for two years?"

YOU NEVER KNOW.

The impossible tasks are the ones that have never been tried. There is no greater thrill than the one that comes from the doing of something that you imagined you couldn't.

I ran into an old friend the other day whom I knew in a little town out west where I once went to school. He was rather a joke to most people then. But now he is quite a citizen as he is making money for himself and anyone else in that town. He took up a simple idea and worked it out to its limit. He had no idea of its extent or possible development but he kept at it until today he has a great business covering many states.

You never know until you try. Seemingly mediocrity is often genius locked up. It only takes the man himself, or perhaps some suggestion from someone else to locate the key that unlocks this genius.

The greatest fortunes have been made from simple ideas. Two notable examples are those of Ford and Woolworth.

All you have to do is to get one good idea and then multiply it. So many people lose out by sitting still. By moving about you see what others are doing and have done. By emulating them and plugging this with courage you will be able to do things of which you only dreamed before.

No matter how many new ideas crop up there is always an improvement that can be made.

You never know your strength until it has been put to the test. And unless you test it out on difficult things you will never be strong.

Above everything never be satisfied. Keep thinking, aspiring and climbing higher.

The best physical a strong body houses the best brain. A strong body is a strong physical background for mental and spiritual growth.

You will do the things that you believe you can do.

Appreciation of Attitude On Cooperative Marketing

Editor Constitution: I have just read with keen interest your comments on the Georgia Cotton-Growers' association.

As a member of this association, I wish to express to you my sincere appreciation for the far-reaching and fearless attitude you have taken in defending this movement which has done so much for cooperative selling in Georgia and is destined to do still more. I hope that you will continue to defend the cause whenever it is attacked.

WHAT'S THE USE SWEATING? Nothing of consequence is secreted (eliminated or thrown off) by the skin in health or in sickness, except salt and water.

That is an undebatable physiological fact.

Nothing of consequence means nothing that anybody needs worry about. If you should suppress the sweating altogether by coat—the skin with some impervious substances like varnish, you would probably suffer seriously or perhaps fatally, but not from poisoning of your system by the retained "waste matter." There is a legend associated with Leonardo da Vinci, according to which a boy whose skin had been glued for some purpose or spectacle died, and generally the fatal result is attributed to the poisoning of the system by the retention of waste matter which should be carried off by the sweat. But that is a wrong theory, as has been proved by scientific investigation. While it is true that a trifling amount of waste matter is excreted by the sweat in fact a trace of nearly every kind of waste matter which is eliminated through the kidneys, still the quantity of such waste matter thrown off by the skin in health or in sickness is so small that it is insignificant.

If more than half of the body surface of any warm-blooded animal be varnished or coated with any impervious material the animal soon dies. A rabbit will die if more than one-fourth of the body surface is so varnished. The fatal result is due however to excessive radiation of heat from the varnished surface, so that the temperature of the animal falls until it is as low as 70 degrees F. just before death. Now, if the temperature of the varnished animal is kept up to or near the normal (98 degrees F.) by artificial means, no untoward result occurs from the varnishing. This proves that the elimination of waste matter is not an important function of the skin.

I've always seemed to take a queer view of body washing and some squeamish if not well-informed people have concluded that I do not quite understand the importance of cleanliness. But some people you see take a much dirtier view of the human skin than I do. They like to think of it as an excretory organ, an emunctory, whereas I find it impossible to ignore the physiological fact, which I believe it would be well for everybody to know: The skin is to all practical purposes not an excretory organ and neither waste matter nor poison nor foul substances of any kind are thrown off by the skin or in the sweat in health or in sickness.

Students of physics assure me that heat is much more rapidly dissipated or radiated from a moist surface than from a smooth dry varnished surface, and hence they can't understand the animal experiment cited above. I am not a physicist and cannot explain the physics of the phenomenon, but it is a fact that the painted and varnished or gilded radiator radiates heat effectively enough. As these physics students see it, the rabbit ought to develop an increase in body temperature, but the rabbit seems to have the habit of doing just the opposite.

But mind you, I do not assume that sweating does one no good. On the contrary, wait till I tell you about that.

We are told that "and as economic conditions are in Russia there is an extraordinary, almost religious, resignation on the part of the people to all suffering" and that "the mysticism of the peasant has been the only thing that has enabled the bolsheviks to remain in power." There can be little doubt that the older generation in Russia is existing in a mood of resignation with conditions as they are at present, but this continued harping on the peasants' mysticism is a safeguard for bolshevik rule seems to us a matter of course. The peasants are also supposed to be highly mystical. In reality they are the most practical people in the world. The peasants in Russia don't care a hoot who rules the roost over in Moscow. All they want is a fair share of happiness and contentment. There are abundant signs, according to the liberal press of Germany, Austria, Czechoslovakia and Holland, that a new life is being created in Russia in spite of or with the active cooperation of the reds, whatever may be the case. And this new life is developing spontaneously, springing from the people itself. And it's the first time in the history of Russia that such a thing has happened. The reforms of Peter the Great and his successors, the attempt to make Russia European, were nothing but an attempt to force an alien civilization on the Russian people. As seen in this people begins to map out its own destiny, will the world see a new Russia. The Prussian system of the bolsheviks must first go into the discard.

I am not a physicist and cannot explain the physics of the phenomenon, but it is a fact that the painted and varnished or gilded radiator radiates heat effectively enough. As these physics students see it, the rabbit ought to develop an increase in body temperature, but the rabbit seems to have the habit of doing just the opposite.

But mind you, I do not assume that sweating does one no good. On the contrary, wait till I tell you about that.

Abolish the Air.

Air Marshal Trenchard, of England, foresees such colossal terror from a new war in which aviation is the chief factor, that he suggests "to abolish the air," a meaning of defense and attack. The past has shown that it would be in the interest of humanity to "abolish the land" and the sea, and abolishing the air as a medium of defense and attack.

Danger of New European War Growing, Chamberlain Says, In Advocating Security Pact

Britain Willing To Join Other Powers in Reducing All Armaments, He Announces.

BY CHARLES M. McCANN.

London, June 24.—Great Britain is willing to join the other powers in a conference to reduce both naval and land armaments, Foreign Secretary Austen Chamberlain announced in the House of Commons Wednesday.

Chamberlain's reference to disarmament occurred during the debate on the European security pact, which he said the British cabinet supported.

"The danger of a new struggle breaking out in the future is becoming greater," Chamberlain said in initiating the security pact discussion.

"The pact represents a new opportunity for peace, and perhaps the last one. Europe today still stands in two camps, hostile in spirit and mutually suspicious. The pact proposals offer a great prospect of a more peaceful world, but they will come to nothing unless Great Britain cooperates."

Europe still in two camps, he said. "Europe today, six years after the signature of peace, still stands ranged in two camps, hostile in spirit, mutually suspicious and apprehensive, with the progress of time, and with the dangers of a new struggle breaking out in the future."

SENATE SERENE AS SESSION OPENS

Featured by two contests for office, organization of the 1925 and 1926 state senate Wednesday moved swiftly and smoothly from the 10 o'clock call to order by Major D. F. McClatchey, secretary, to the final fall of the gavel shortly after 3 o'clock, when adjournment for the day was voted.

Senators A. G. Foster and H. P. De La Perriere formed the senate committee to notify Governor Clifford Walker that the senate had completed its organization. The senate will reconvene at 11 o'clock this morning for the transaction of business.

Howard L. Ennis was elected president without opposition upon the nomination by Carl N. Hines, of the 17th, won the position of president pro tem, by a vote of 31 to 14 over H. P. De La Perriere, of the 33rd.

The election of a messenger furnished the other of the two contests, "Uncle Dave" Strother, gray-haired Confederate veteran, winning over a fellow veteran, M. G. Murchison, by a vote of 27 to 15.

McClatchey Cheered. McClatchey's reelection gave full proof of the esteem and respect for him which is held by the senate for long and faithful service when he was given an ovation upon being escorted to the rostrum. Other officers elected during the morning were A. P. Griffin, of Decatur, doorkeeper, and Rev. J. W. G. Watkins, chaplain.

The entire day's session of the senate was given over to the organization of that body, no bills being introduced. With the opening of the session this morning the floodgates of legislative work will open wide.

The day's session opened with a prayer by Dr. Watkins, veteran chaplain. Chief Justice Edward B. Russell, of the Georgia supreme court, administered the oath of office, and the roll call was held. The election of officers took up a large portion of the session and was followed by the selection of seats.

President Ennis struck a keynote of cooperation toward prosperity for Georgia in an address following his election. He referred to education, highways and agriculture as the three paramount questions confronting the state today, and said that the senate for an education for every child in Georgia and the teachers of the children. The matter of state health is also prominent, he declared. Liberal appropriations for the health department will enhance the value of real estate in Georgia.

Economy Is Kept. He expressed himself as decided to "no system but that of economy," and regretted the differences in the highway department as being unfortunate. He urged that "such errors be overlooked, though we must correct the errors."

Georgia has 90 per cent more inducements than has Florida, he said, and the cooperation of the legislature, the people and all state departments to make Georgia a greater state. "Go south, young man," he said, "with the north, east and west, but it also says for capital and industry to go south, too," he said. He urged a slogan upon the senate, "Put a business administration in every department of the state, and that is the honest man courts investigation."

The debt to the Confederate veterans drew his attention, and he spoke of it as a "disgrace to the state," urging that some means be found to pay the debt. "If it becomes necessary, let's discount more of the W. & A. rentals. Don't wait until we have sold enough cigars and cigarettes."

chair, shifted about, nervously tapped the tips of his plump white fingers, anxiously awaiting the end of the merciless attack. He obviously was relieved when Stewart rose to speak.

But that "Haag Shepherd" jarred him. It burst a few feet from his face, where Stewart stood before the jury box. Shepherd jumped sharply in his chair, and then settled down again, realizing that his own lawyer spoke.

"Our platform," Stewart continued, "is that Shepherd is innocent, that Faiman is a liar, and that this whole trial is a persecution."

Judge Harry Olson, chief justice of the municipal court, was bitterly assailed by Stewart. Olson, from the time of Billy's death, relentlessly pushed the investigation into whether Shepherd killed the youth.

"Can you respect a judge who steps off the bench, takes his judicial robe aside, and represents one side or the other?" Stewart asked.

Objections by the state to such criticism were sustained by the court, but Stewart had made his point in bringing Judge Olson's name into the argument.

Flays Faiman Testimony. He wheeled back to flay the testimony of Faiman.

"Without Faiman there is no case," he shouted. "And the state's attorney stood before you here and said that he could not vouch for Faiman!"

"A diploma from Faiman's school is a badge of shame," Judge Crowe in his opening statement said to you. Mr. Gorman in his closing statement said to you. "Why should Faiman say he gave germs to Shepherd if he didn't?"

"We haven't anything on poor Faiman," he said. "And I say to you, gentlemen of the jury," Stewart cried, "that if you believe the state's attorney hasn't anything on Faiman—you're crazy!"

Assistant State's Attorney Gorman had completed his part in the state's arguments at the morning session of the court. Every move of Shepherd since the youth's death was seized upon by Gorman as an indirect confession of guilt.

"This man Shepherd had a guilty conscience," Gorman said. "The voice of his conscience led him to make incriminating statements against himself. No," he said, "I never killed Billy McClintock. But he offered bribes and excuses, and he fled from town."

"He could hardly wait until Billy was buried to get out of town. He went to Albuquerque, New Mexico. Why? Because he was guilty and he wanted to run away from his conscience!"

As Gorman wound up his argument his voice rose louder. Every word was charged with emotion. He concluded his address with a burning plea for a verdict giving "the vengeance of the law," and thundered in the end, "the wages of sin is death!"

Stewart Not Through. Stewart had not completed his argument when court adjourned for the day. He will resume the argument Thursday morning, and when he concludes W. W. O'Brien, Shepherd's other lawyer, will speak. Thereafter State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe will conclude the state's arguments. Crowe, who fought for hanging verdict for Dirke Loeb and Nathan Leopold in the Franks murder case, is expected to make a typically fiery address.

It is considered improbable that the case will reach the jury before Friday.

'Prince of Pilsen' Chorus Lauded by Opera Audience

Long, hard work, and lots of it, is the requirement for training a chorus for a successful musical comedy. Therefore, it is with considerable surprise and astonishment that Atlanta is watching the pilsen ballet this week at the city auditorium. Supporters of the artists in "The Prince of Pilsen," a light opera which is almost at the mercy of the chorus, this group of Atlanta girls step through intricate dances with a familiarity and assurance which is almost at the mercy of the chorus, this group of Atlanta girls step through intricate dances with a familiarity and assurance which is almost at the mercy of the chorus.

Miss Yago Starring. Anne Yago, whose rich contralto flooded the auditorium in "The Mikado," appears to be at great advantage in the present week's production, and through the art of makeup, undergoes a transformation from the homely "Kathleen" to a beautiful American widow.

The cast, of course, is excellent, with Robert Pickin and William McLeod sharing the comedy honors, and with Ethel Wright and Irene Dixon dividing with Miss Ryan the soprano parts. Thomas Conkey, George McLeod, Dudley Marwick and Charles Schenck also are cast in leading roles. The only one of the stars who has been let out of the cast this week is Louise Hunter, the sweet-singing soprano, who was such an adorable Yun Yun in "The Mikado."

Waycross-Jacksonville Hard Surface Highway Planned by January 1

Waycross, Ga., June 24.—(Special.)—Of great interest to this section is the contract to be let by the state highway department on June 26, at East Point, for a stretch on the Dixie highway from Braganza toward Folkston. It is the plan of the highway department to pave the road from Braganza to the Charlotte county line. Charlotte county is also preparing to start paving work within the next few weeks on its stretch of the highway, and before the end of the year it is expected that a hard-surface road will extend from Waycross to Jacksonville, a distance of approximately 73 miles.

TEXTILE EXPERT GIVEN DINNER AT QUITMAN

Quitman, Ga., June 24.—(Special.)—At a dinner held Monday evening at the Quitman country club, which was attended by many business men of the city, appreciation of Howard Whitehead, general superintendent of the Western Reserve Cotton Mills company, of Quitman, was expressed in a very feeling manner by a number of speakers who paid tribute to Mr. Whitehead as a man and as a textile expert.

Mr. Whitehead is leaving Quitman to become connected with an eastern textile concern.

The dinner was given by the Mason, Tice and Baker company and the Western Reserve Cotton Mills company, both of Cent. Ohio, which are the dominating holders of stock in the Quitman and the settlers. W. H. Clift, president of the two companies, paid glowing tribute to Mr. Whitehead, whom he described as an outstanding textile expert in the industry in America. He presented to Mr. Whitehead a handsomely engraved watch on behalf of the officers and directors of the two corporations.

S. S. Bennett, member of the state highway commission, presided as toastmaster.

DAIRIES OF HANCOCK PURCHASE FINE CATTLE

Sparta, Ga., June 24.—(Special.)—Hancock county, already known for its fine herds of Jersey cattle, will no doubt be the home in the near future of national winners. N. D. Chapman, owner of a dairy here, and tax collector of Hancock county, has a heifer just coming in whose dam is "Aristocratic Boy's Viola," the cow winning the gold medal for producing 12,847 pounds of milk and 117.50 pounds of butter fat in 305 days.

Mr. Chapman owns several more of the same cows. Others are owned by H. B. Harris and A. P. Rucker. They were purchased in a lot from Hooks and Indur, near Washington, D. C., last spring. Probably 40 or 50 were sold in the county and they all give promise of making big records.

Several fine bulls also were purchased at the same time and the dairy farmers of the county are gradually building up their herds.

ECZEMA

You will be compelled to admit that the results of S.S.S. are really amazing!

Many people imagine that eczema or better needs only some external application on the skin in order to get relief. This is because the attention of the sufferer is so violently directed to the intense burning and itching which accompanies this disease. Try as they may—permanent relief will never be theirs until the diseased laden blood is thoroughly cleansed.

We know there is one thing that stops eczema and that is more red-blood-cells! S.S.S. builds them by the million! You can increase your red-blood-cells to the point where it is practically impossible for eczema to exist. We know that as blood-cells increase in number, blood impurities vanish! We also know that night follows day. Both are facts! But have you, eczema sufferers, ever actually taken advantage of this wonderful fact? Thousands just like you have never thought about it. Skin eruptions, eczema, with all its fiery, skin digging torture, and its soul-tearing, unrelenting itching, pimples, blackheads and boils, they all pack up and go, when the tide of blood-cells begins to roll in! Blood-cells are the fighting giants of Nature! S.S.S. builds them by the million! It has been doing it since 1826.

S.S.S. is one of the greatest blood-cell builders, blood-cleansers and body strengtheners known to us mortals! When you put these facts together—then to continue to have eczema and skin eruptions looks more like a sin than a disease. S.S.S. contains only vegetable medicinal ingredients. Because S.S.S. does build red-blood-cells, it routs eczema, clears the skin, builds firm flesh, fills out hollow cheeks, and gives you that more up and going appearance.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

INCREASE IN FOREIGN TRADE IS PREDICTED

Seattle, June 24.—(By the Associated Press.)—While the foreign trade of the United States last year passed all previous records in volume, this year gives promise of exceeding it, James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel corporation, told the National Foreign Trade convention today. Mr. Farrell also is chairman of the national foreign trade council.

The volume of American exports and imports for the calendar year 1924, Mr. Farrell said, was $3,100,000,000 long tons and the aggregate value was more than $3,200,000,000. To give an idea of the magnitude of the volume, he said that if the tonnage could be handled in a day through any one port it would require a 50-car freight train every seven minutes during the entire 24 hours to clear the docks.

"The figures for our foreign trade for 1924," the speaker continued, "represent a growth of production, and enterprise in the United States that is cause for satisfaction. It was very nearly double that for 1913, the last year before the war, whether measured by value or by quantity. The war stimulated activities and injected an element of violent fluctuations, with a period of apparent, but fictitious, increase from which, I think it is safe to say, we have now recovered, so that the growth shown in the last three years may be compared with reason to the development during the 10-year period prior to the war."

Mr. Farrell expressed the view that the foreign trade trend was favorable and steadily upward, but that there are bound to be fluctuations which will affect, more or less seriously, various factors of it. Generally speaking, he said, we have the productive capacity in this country to enable us to maintain a considerably larger overseas commerce than we now enjoy, which is one of the chief factors influencing us toward foreign trade.

A new program is being arranged this year and much permanent good is expected to result.

SPARTA DAUGHTERS PLAN TRAIL MARKER

Sparta, Ga., June 24.—(Special.)—The Sparta chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, have appointed a committee to select a marker and also the site on which to place it along the "Old Creek Indian Trail" in this county, which is on "Cauldron" creek up near the Greene county line.

Some months ago this organization decided to mark this trail and also the site upon which a treaty was made between Indians and the settlers. Granite boulders, to be capped with bronze plates will tell future generations of the historical significance of the spots in which they stand. The work will be started at once, according to the committee.

Hotel Man Dead.

Wilmington, N. C., June 24.—Charles E. Hooper, hotel man of this city, died here this morning after an illness of three months. He was 55 years of age. Mr. Hooper, a native of England, who came to this country at an early age, had operated hotels in Washington, Charlotte, N. C., Atlanta and Macon, Ga.

DAYLIGHT BANDITS GET $200,000 LOOT

Police and detectives Wednesday night were watching local hospitals for the appearance of an unidentified white man, believed to have been wounded as he attempted to invade the residence of Nathan Greenman, 52 Washington street, early Wednesday morning.

According to J. M. Frisch, of 62 Washington street, who reported the attempted invasion, the man was seen loitering around the Greenman residence shortly after dark Tuesday. Mr. Frisch stated that later he saw him attempt to enter a window in the residence. Mrs. Greenman is said to have screamed, whereupon Frisch fired at the intruder, who stumbled and lay on the floor, apparently wounded.

NEW REPRESENTATIVE FROM HANCOCK COUNTY

Sparta, Ga., June 24.—(Special.)—Representative John C. Lewis has gone to Atlanta to take his seat in the legislature, he having been elected to fill the unexpired term of Representative T. F. Fleming, resigned.

Hancock's new representative has given notice that he will introduce a local bill creating the office of commissioner of roads and revenues in Hancock county. If this bill is passed the affairs of the county will be administered by one commissioner instead of three, which has been the case for many years.

Backbone of 1924 Cards Traded Away by Rickey

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

New York, June 24.—(Special.)—It's easy to criticize the way the other fellow does his job, particularly if you aren't handicapped by the slightest knowledge of the other fellow's job.

Never having managed a grammar school team, much less a major league team, I take pleasure in delivering an expert razor against Branch Rickey, late manager of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Speaking of his term with the Cardinals, lately ended Rickey made so many mistakes in the expert opinion of one who knows nothing about the subject, that it is a wonder he lasted as long as he did and no wonder whatever that he was relieved by Roger Hornsby.

Three players who amounted to three-fourths of the backbone of the 1924 Cards were traded by Rickey under the impression that they were old iron. He sent away Jacques Fourmure to the Dodgers and Jacques made himself beastly to the pitchers of the National league, hitting more than 400 at times and knocking many home runs. Rickey sent Milton Stock to the Dodgers also, and finally, backed up the dead wagon and delivered to Wilbert Robinson one pitcher, Bill Doherty, who had all the outward appearances of extreme defunctness. Bill won a dozen games in a streak in 1924, which performance might be considered a heavy contribution to the season's work of the Brooklyn team which chased the Giants all the way to October.

Now, then, did Branch Rickey know that these aged ball players who wouldn't even good report cards with him suddenly open their eyes with a "Where am I?" expression and start playing the way they did in their solid days?

He couldn't and he didn't. The trades turned out to be sap transactions, but let it not be forgotten that Miller Huggins and even such men as Jack Quinn, Urban Shocker and George Mogridge; that Tris Speaker let out Stuffy McInnis; that Connie Mack let out Joe Dugan and the best lead-off hitter of his time, Whitey Witt; or that Harry Frazee sold a million-dollar piece named G. H. Ruth, the New York Yankees for a credit of $135,000.

City Attorney Orders Removal of Car Tags On All City Machines

Automobiles and motorcycles driven by members of the police department in the line of duty will appear Thursday without tags of any description and the state treasury department will have that situation to deal with. That creates a new dilemma for Acting Police Chief E. L. Jeff, who wants to know who is going to pay fines if the state makes cases against the city drivers.

City license tags which have adorned police vehicles were removed Wednesday when instructions to do so were received by Chief Jeff from City Attorney James L. Layson, but there were no state tags to take their place so a tagless motor department now is ready to rush about the streets in defiance of Georgia's laws, according to viewpoints of state officers.

Chief Jeff leaned comfortably back on a technicality when he declared he had not directed that cars be driven without tags. His order only instructed drivers to remove tags and turn them over to police captains. In the meantime, policemen want to know who will be standing behind them if they fall into the clutches of the state courts.

Captain Grover C. Fain instructed his men to drive their cars, tags or no tags. The city has got to be policed, he said.

Several hundred persons were attracted to Five Points early Wednesday night and traffic was halted for a short time when a manhole cover was blown by unusual pressure of gas, believed to have been brought about by excessive heat during the past few days. Flames poured forth from the hole, the gas having ignited underground, and firemen were summoned.

The blaze subsided, however, by the time firemen arrived and the cover was replaced and traffic resumed within a few minutes.

BRITISH GOLF Record Crop of Home Runs STAR TO QUIT TITLE PLAY

London, June 24.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Daily Express says that Miss Joyce Wethered, British women's golf titleholder, has decided to quit championship play because she is tired of it. The paper quotes her as saying: "I have no reason that would appeal to the masculine mind. I am stopping playing simply because I choose to. I am tired of it for the time being. There is no mystery about it. I am not going to emigrate or marry; I have simply exercised a woman's prerogative of doing something without the slightest regard for what anybody thinks and because I want to please myself."

If Joyce Wethered, empress of golf, has retired from championship competition, her decision will disappoint American golfers who have been eager to see her play.

Although she never has contemplated a trip to this country, there were hopes that she might be induced to enter the tournament for the American title at St. Louis next fall. Her brother, Roger, has made several trips to the United States as a member of the Walker cup team, but though an excellent golfer, he lacks his sister's brilliant play.

Miss Wethered attracted special attention when she defeated Miss Glenna Collett, American star, in the recent British women's championship by playing 15 holes in even four and for lowed this week of the first round in a 37-hole match with Cecil Leitch, Troon course in 75 twice.

If Miss Wethered retires there probably will not be opportunity for an informal world's brother and sister championship, the possibilities of which have occurred to some golfers because of the feats of Edith Cummings, of Chicago, former women's national champion, and her brother, Dexter, Yale's intercollegiate titleholder.

"Abie's Irish Rose." (At the Atlanta.)

The fifth week is announced: "Abie's Irish Rose" is to remain at the Atlanta theater this week, making the fifth week of its local engagement. Never has any amusement of any type proven so popular before, and it is safe to say that it will be many years before another play comes to Atlanta capable of attracting audiences for 40 consecutive performances.

Particular interest has centered during the present week in the work of Dorothy Coghlan and William Frederic, two new members of the cast. Miss Coghlan came here direct from the New York company and has taken pleasure in comparing her work with that of the preceding leading lady whom she succeeded in the role of "Rosemary Murphy," in the local production.

Loew's Vaudeville. (At Loew's Grand.)

Enthusiastic receptions are being accorded the unique musical organization, the Balalaika orchestra, at Loew's Grand theater this week. The orchestra is composed entirely of Russian stringed instruments and a pleasing program of popular songs and Russian songs are blended. With the orchestra are Harry Ellsworth, sensational dancer, and Sophia Basimova and Arthur Rogalsky, singers.

Dave Bender and Harry Almonstrong are sharing honors with the headliners in one of the funniest burlesque mind-reading and acrobatic acts ever seen here. Three other pleasing numbers and the Loew feature picture, "On Thin Ice," complete the excellent bill.

Keith's Vaudeville. (At Keith's Forsyth.)

Keith's Forsyth patrons are finding the same enjoyment of the songs of Joseph E. Howard this week as they found in them when they were written and at their height of success, for Mr. Howard is singing them himself as the headlining feature of the program.

In addition to this splendid attraction the bill also includes the act of Will Burns and Jimmy Burnett. Late Liepsig does a score of bewildering stunts with cards, Thomas and Gertrude Kennedy show some fancy dancing steps no more.

Colleen Moore. (At Metropolitan.)

With the bustling background of the west in the making, peopled by faithful replicas of the period, "The Desert Flower," latest Colleen Moore vehicle to be released by First National, is now the attraction at the Metropolitan theater.

Admirers of this spirited sprit, who have been surprised time and again by her many-sided genius, will look upon a Colleen Moore quite different from the one they beheld in the flapper classics she has contributed to the screen. Lloyd Hughes appears opposite Miss Moore.

"The Shock Punch." (At the Rialto.)

A 20-year record as the most consistently villainous person in motion pictures went to smash when Paul Panzer, dean of the screen villains, was cast to play the role of "bail" to Richard Dix in "The Shock Punch," which is the chief attraction at the Rialto theater this week.

Another event at the Rialto this week is the showing of the first episode of the new H. C. Witwer series of short films, "The Pacemakers," with Albert Vaughn and her comedy corps.

BY IRWIN M. HOWE.

By means of the introduction of the so-called "lively" ball and the unobtrusive but steady march of the bleachers and stands toward the home plate, the major league brand of baseball has been radically changed. Not since 1911, when the first cork center ball was used has the difference between a real ball game contested by skillful teams and the modern offering been so marked as during the present season.

Including games of Sunday, June 21, 270 so-called home runs had been recorded in the National league and 251 in the American circuit. With the Phillies' home in 29 battles, the Cubs' field in Chicago is not to be despised either with 62 in 30 games.

In 1910 there were 144 home runs in the American; in 1911, 133 and in 1915, 150. In the same seasons National league sluggers produced 214, 314 and 225 circuit clouts.

19 Title Games in 1910. In 1910 there were 19 title games in the American league, eight of them going to extra innings, while in the National there were seven. Five of the league's major extra-inning games were played to a finish. Now a tie game is a very rare occurrence and the extra-inning games, which every fan hails with joy have likewise almost disappeared.

The 1925 brand of home run has not only become so common that it ceases to attract any attention, it is not even a genuine four-baser.

BY IRWIN M. HOWE.

By means of the introduction of the so-called "lively" ball and the unobtrusive but steady march of the bleachers and stands toward the home plate, the major league brand of baseball has been radically changed. Not since 1911, when the first cork center ball was used has the difference between a real ball game contested by skillful teams and the modern offering been so marked as during the present season.

Including games of Sunday, June 21, 270 so-called home runs had been recorded in the National league and 251 in the American circuit. With the Phillies' home in 29 battles, the Cubs' field in Chicago is not to be despised either with 62 in 30 games.

In 1910 there were 144 home runs in the American; in 1911, 133 and in 1915, 150. In the same seasons National league sluggers produced 214, 314 and 225 circuit clouts.

U.S. POLO TEAM WINS; KEEPS TROPHY

London, June 24.—(By the Associated Press.)—The United States army polo team today again proved its superiority over the British army team at Hurlingham in the second game of the series for the international military championship and by winning by a score of six to four retained the championship trophy. On Saturday the Americans won the first game of the three-game series by 8 goals to 4. Notwithstanding the fact that the Americans won the competition, the final match of the series will be played Saturday.

Today's game was not as one-sided as that of last Saturday. The British army team put up a much better fight.

The Americans led by only 5 goals to 4 when the final period began. There were a couple of accidents during the game. Denning, of the British four had a bad fall when in turning sharply his pony slipped, and one of the McCreery brothers came down on top. Denning was dragged out from under the ponies, suffering from a slight concussion. Two of the American players were concerned in the other accident. Captain P. P. Rhodes crossed Major Louis A. Beard and brought down Beard. The major, however, was not injured.

The experts credit Captain Charles H. Gerhardt, the youngest member of the American team as being the outstanding player of the victors. In all he had five shots at goals today and scored three times. Major A. H. Wilson obtained the other goals for the Americans.

There are a number of other capable golfers from alien ports who hold promise of championship form. From the Irish free state there is Moss O'Neill, who led the qualifying round with the score of 146. From France come Armand Mawer, who 14 years ago won the British open event. All the great British professionals says James Braid and George Gadd, who failed to qualify, are entered. This includes Alvy Mitchell, George Duncan, A. Compton and the two Whitcombs, and the weather prospects are wonderful.

The Prestwick course is fast, keen and tricky.

Calling off of the scheduled fight between Larry Avera, southern junior welterweight champion, and Kid Seaborn, of New Orleans, in Mobile July 4 was announced last night by Billy Lots, manager of Avera.

Last week at Fort Bragg Avera made a remarkable fight to beat Ken Burris, who outweighed him nearly 10 pounds, but in the early rounds took a lick on the jaw that caused a lineal fracture. The injury will keep Avera out of the ring for five or six weeks. At the end of that time, however, he will be fit for fighting again.

The injury to Avera's jaw has resulted in the calling off of several other fights that Lots had booked for Avera.

2 Other Americans Among 83 To Start 72-Hole Grind; France Enters Former Champ

Tröon, Scotland, June 24.—(By the Associated Press.)—Over the rolling green fairway and fearsome sand dunes of Prestwick, where more than 60 years ago a few sturdy Scottish golfers organized the first of the open championships, that event will have its annual renewal tomorrow with competitors from three continents and as many islands.

In all 83 golfers have qualified for the 72-hole struggle.

In the list are three who have come from America to try for the trophy, MacDonald Smith, Jim Barnes and Joe Kirkwood.

So highly do the British regard the prospects of an American once again winning the championship that they have made one of the trio, Smith, favorite in the betting at odds of 5 to 1. Barnes and Kirkwood also are conceded good chances of capturing the cup.

Three times in the last five years an American has won the British open title and in each of these five championships Americans have filled two of the first three positions at the finish.

Chicago, June 24.—(By the Associated Press.)—A soaking rainstorm that sprang up just before the last nine holes were started failed to interfere with the game of Mrs. M. L. Reinhardt, of Dallas, Texas, who today went into the lead in the second round of the women's western medal play championship golf tournament with a total of 165 for the 36 holes. The final 18 holes will be played tomorrow.

Mrs. Reinhardt, the present champion, turned in a card of 39-42-81 for the 18 holes today, which added to her 84 of yesterday gave her a total of 165. This was three strokes better than the 168 of Mrs. Melvin Jones, of Olympia Fields, her nearest competitor, who today duplicated her 84 of yesterday. Mrs. Jones is the present Chicago champion, and also holder of the North and South title.

Mrs. Yee W. Mida, of Butterfield, who topped the field in the first day's play with an 83, came back today with 39-47-80, which gave her a temporary tie with Mrs. J. F. Horn, of Westmoreland, formerly Miss Miriam Burns, of Kansas City with 169 for the third place.

The youngest player of the tournament, Miss Virginia Van Wie, of Minnola, Mich., 16, who caused a sensation yesterday with a score of 43-45-88, clipped off five strokes today from her first effort, scoring 42-41-83 for a total of 111 for the two days.

THE HAWK

By DANE COLLIDGE

STORY.
Dave Crabtree, known as the Hawk, works as night herder for the NA cattle company in the Powder River district. Bull Hooke, a small independent cattleman, quarrels with the range boss, Connelly, over some lost cows. Crabtree, who is quarrelsome, is sent to Cato Clark, the company manager, who travels about the country. Crabtree, who is a bit of a troublemaker, is sent to Cato Clark, the company manager, who travels about the country. Crabtree, who is a bit of a troublemaker, is sent to Cato Clark, the company manager, who travels about the country.

INSTALLMENT XVI.
The Hawk's Triumph.
The Hawk seated himself, and Mr. Grace said he would like to tell him about the company he represented. "The North American Cattle company was organized by Mr. Clark and the stock sold abroad, chiefly in England. It has always paid fair dividends, though the losses seemed excessive, especially in stolen cattle. Would you believe it, Mr. Crabtree—our loss last year alone ran well over 5,000 pounds! But this year—I felt even our principal will be wiped out—that is why we still cling to Cato Clark. He is always a man of deeds and his latest plan is this: to gather up our herds and drive them north into Montana, thus cutting the Gordian knot at one blow. Right or wrong, we would make an end of all this hickering and bloodshed and be-

"Well, why don't you do it?"
gin over again in a more favored spot."
"Well, why don't you do it?" inquired the Hawk.
"Why, my dear fellow!" cried Grace, "that's just what we came here for, but you and your companion have knocked it all into a cocked hat by driving my manager out of town. I am an absolute stranger and know nothing whatever about his methods of handling the cows; and besides, I must confess, I am in fear of my life with these rustlers all about."

"You're perfectly safe," replied the Hawk. "We're not fighting the NA company, we're fighting Cato Clark and these gunmen he brings in to murder us. And another thing, Mr. Grace, don't believe all you hear about the rustlers stealing your stock. That's a favorite trick among these managers and foremen for covering up thefts of their own. But you fire Cato Clark and send in an honest man, and I'll guarantee you can gather every cow."

"O, I can't believe that," murmured Grace. "Every ranch owner in the country has fled for his life and the rustlers are stealing right and left."
"If they've fled," retorted the Hawk, "it's on account of their own conscience, not from anything the rustlers have done. I'm a rustler myself—although I've never stolen a cow—and I know all about these owners. They have fled, Grace, because they couldn't look me in the eye after hiring all those gunmen to kill me. That's why they've fled and that's why Cato Clark wears those cheaters over his eyes. He's ashamed, and he ought to be ashamed."

"Ah—cheaters?" repeated the Englishman helplessly.
"Yes, those glasses he always wears—that's what they call them out here, and I am informed, Mistuh Grace, that he has never taken them off since the day he killed his wife."
"My word!" gasped Grace. "You don't mean it!"
"It certainly counts against you," nodded the Hawk. "And not only that but a hundred other things he's done—that's why I advise you to fire him. The secondarily old reprobate even forces his stepdaughter, a young lady we all admire and respect, to ride with him wherever he goes. Except for that, Mistuh Grace, he would have been killed long ago; but we all honor and protect a good woman."

"My word, what a terrible country!"
"The country is all right," the Hawk defended, stoutly. "The trouble comes from people like you. You hire any old thief and ruffian you find, as long as he makes it pay; and then you come in here, when the fat is in the fish, and complain about the depredations of rustlers. Mistuh Grace, I saw the dead list that Cato himself drew up—we found it when we captured his wagons—and over sixty men were living on Powder River were down on that list to be killed. That's why they hate your company, and as long as he's your manager the rustlers will go on stealing your cattle. I don't suppose that that's the way you want to live that can say I ever branded an NA calf, but at the same time, Mistuh Grace—
"The very thing!" broke in the Englishman excitedly. "Won't you be our manager, Mr. Crabtree?"
"What's that?" demanded Crabtree sharply.
"Why it just occurred to me that you are the man to get the company out of this cruel dilemma. Through no fault of our own we are entirely helpless with some forty thousand cattle intended. If you will gather them, Mr. Crabtree, and drive them to the line, I will pay you and pay you handsomely!"
"Why don't you gather 'em yourself?" demanded the Hawk. "I don't

Priced Consistently Low As Quality May Be Sold

Special Showing Today and Friday of Desirable Summer Merchandise

The Return to a Golden Age
AN EDITORIAL BY JAMES WALLEN

Good taste has become a national tendency. We are growing in wisdom and grace.

Even Mr. Ford, who told Julian Street that he would not give five cents for all the art in the world, had to round the corners of his radiators to conform to the public desire for better lines in the inexpensive car.

It may be that we shall return to the placid ways of the golden age of good taste in America. It was then that Duncan Phyfe was making furniture, Samuel McIntire was designing houses, Paul Revere producing exquisite silver, Simon Willard and Seth Thomas setting the standard for clocks, and Baron Stiegel evolving fairylike glassware.

In the Chamberlin-Johnson-Dubose store there is plenty of evidence that the people of the South appreciate and desire fine things.

This does not refer to articles bearing a high price, but rather to those objects of everyday use, which are finely designed and carefully made.

Value in merchandise consists of good material, honest workmanship and one other element—beauty of texture and pattern.

In the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose store value is written in indelible lines of quality. It is as apparent as the sun, as certain as daylight.

Miss Madden Weds Mr. Prescott At Lovely Ceremony in Concord

Unusual interest centers in the marriage of Miss Afters Madden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Alexander Madden, of Concord, Ga., and Calvin Hunsberr Prescott, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Prescott, which was solemnized Wednesday afternoon, June 24, at 4 o'clock at the Baptist church in Concord. Rev. Heard, of Macon, performed the impressive ceremony in the presence of a large assemblage of friends and relatives.

Decorations.
Lovely and attractive decorations added to the charm of the quaint church. Stately palms and ferns formed a dark background for tall pedestals filled with gladioli and snapdragons. On either side of the altar were two seven-handled candelabra holding burning tapers which cast a soft glow over the scene. Graceful ropes of smilax and ivy were festooned on the side walls.

The pews for the family were marked by wide bands of satin ribbon and clusters of gladioli.
Preceding the ceremony a beautiful musical program was rendered. Mrs. Bruce Bullock sang "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly," accompanied by Professor O. W. Huff. During the ceremony "Trauerlied" was softly played.

Bridal Party.
The ushers entered the church first; they were John B. Madden, W. E. Madden, Dr. B. L. Shackelford and Hassel Madden.

Following the ushers were the two groomsmen, one coming down each of the side aisles. The groomsmen were Sam Thomson and H. R. Cates. They were followed by the bridesmaids, one entering down each of the two side aisles. The bridesmaids were Miss Irma Dobbs, of Marietta, and Miss Lois Wright, of Atlanta.

Miss Dobbs and Miss Wright wore shiny gowns of chiffon made alike, one pink and the other lavender.
They were followed by the matron of honor, Mrs. B. L. Shackelford, who was gowned in a becoming frock of yellow chiffon. They wore hats to match the dresses with velvet bows and carried shoulder arm bouquets of sweetpeas, snap dragons and other spring flowers tied with tulle to match their dresses.

Following them came Master Roger Strickland, the little ringbearer, who was dressed in a white satin suit. He carried the ring on a white satin pillow. The flower girl, Mary Louise Madden, and Maude Madden, brides of the bride, followed. Mary Louise Madden was in pink georgette and carried a bouquet of white roses. Maude Madden was in white georgette and carried a bouquet of white roses.

Beautiful Bride.
Entering with her father, J. A. Madden, who gave her in marriage, they were met by Mr. Prescott and his best man, his brother, Mr. Thomas Prescott. The bride was a picture of exquisite loveliness in her bridal robes of white satin caught at intervals with clusters of orange blossoms. Her court train was clasped to her shoulders by orange blossoms and fell gracefully for many yards.

Her filmy tulle veil formed a crown on her head and the folds of the tulle fell over the white satin. She carried an arm shower bouquet of valley lilies and white orchids.

Reception.
Little Richard Smith acted as train-bearer and "Mr. White" in suit.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Madden, parents of the bride, entertained at an informal reception at their home. Receiving with them were the members of the bridal party, Mrs. W. R. Prescott, mother of the groom; Mrs. Charles Cork, the bride's aunt, and Mrs. J. L. Gardner, of Locust Grove.

Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. Richard Smith and Mrs. W. H. Aycock. Serving punch were Miss Mary Mae and Miss Julia McEndon. Miss Anne Moore and Miss Patricia Madden.

Assisting in serving were Miss Marion Trickleland, Miss Dorothy McTelvin, Miss Anne McTelvin, Miss Frances Raven, Miss Florence Raven and Miss Annie Irvin.
Mrs. W. F. Madden kept the bride's book.

A color scheme of yellow and white was carried out in the decorations of the home.

The bride's table was overlaid with an exquisite cover of real lace. Gracing the center of the table was the pink three-tiered wedding cake. Festooned from the chandelier held pink tulle. Silver candelabra held pink tapers.

Mrs. Madden, mother of the bride, was lovely in gray georgette with a hat to match and a corsage of pink roses.
Mrs. Prescott, mother of the groom, was handsomely gowned in black chiffon with a large black hat to match. She wore a shoulder bouquet of orchids.

A number of out-of-town guests were present at the wedding.
Following the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Prescott left for Grove Park Inn in Asheville and will motor to other parts in North Carolina. On their return they will make their home with the groom's parents, at 7 Clifton road, in Druid Hills.

Prominent Families.
Mrs. Prescott is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Alexander Madden, pioneer citizens of Pike county, and well known throughout the state. She is a young woman of unusual personal charm and has won a wide circle of friends in Atlanta, where she has been a teacher in the public school for the past few years. Mr. Prescott is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Prescott. He received his education at Georgia School of Technology, and is a member of the Chi Pi fraternity. During the world war he served with the American expeditionary forces in France. He is prominently connected with the Atlanta agency of white crepe, made with low waist line and graceful circular skirt. The round neck was outlined with small chiffon flowers studded with crystal beads and larger chiffon flowers were used at the waist line. The long white-satin train, which was fastened to the shoulders, was outlined with silver crystal beads and adorned with two large chiffon flowers. The white chiffon veil was made cap effect and caught with a band of orange blossoms, which fell in a shower at either side. Her only ornament was a string of pearls, the gift of the groom, and she carried a bouquet of valley lilies and lavender orchids, showered with valley lilies and spray orchids.

During the evening the bride and groom left for a wedding journey to the mountains of North Carolina, after which they will be at home with Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Bailey, 315 Juniper street.

Miss Elizabeth Thomas Is Honor Guest.

Miss Elizabeth Thomas, a bride-elect of July 4, was the central figure at a party given Wednesday afternoon by Miss Marion Speer, at her home on Highland avenue. Summer flowers decorated the apartments where the guests were received.

Miss Lillian McDonald sang several vocal numbers and Miss Sarah Sharp gave several dance features.
Assisting in entertaining were Miss Jane Wiley, Mrs. W. H. Wiley, Mrs. W. S. Smith and Mrs. W. C. Rainey. The guests included Miss Thomas, Mrs. Louise Ware, Miss Lucia Smith,

An enjoyable affair of Wednesday was the buffet supper at which Mrs. L. D. Yarbrough entertained at her home on Piedmont avenue following the Yarbrough-Landauer wedding rehearsal.

The table in the dining room had as its central decoration an attractive arrangement of summer garden flowers, and the same lovely blossoms were used in profusion throughout the home.

Mrs. Yarbrough received her guests wearing a model of black georgette and lace; Miss Ruth Yarbrough, the bride-elect, was lovely in flesh georgette girdled in rose, and Miss Foy Yarbrough wore an attractive frock of ashes of roses georgette.

Beside the wedding party those invited for this occasion were Miss Ruth Wesley, Miss Caroline Cheeves, Mrs. Hugh Porter, of Cutbert, and Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Landauer, the groom's parents who arrived in the city on Wednesday.

NUCOA GETS MORE ADVERTISING BY WORD OF MOUTH THAN ANY OTHER WAY

There's hardly a food subject nowadays that women are talking more about than Nucoa.

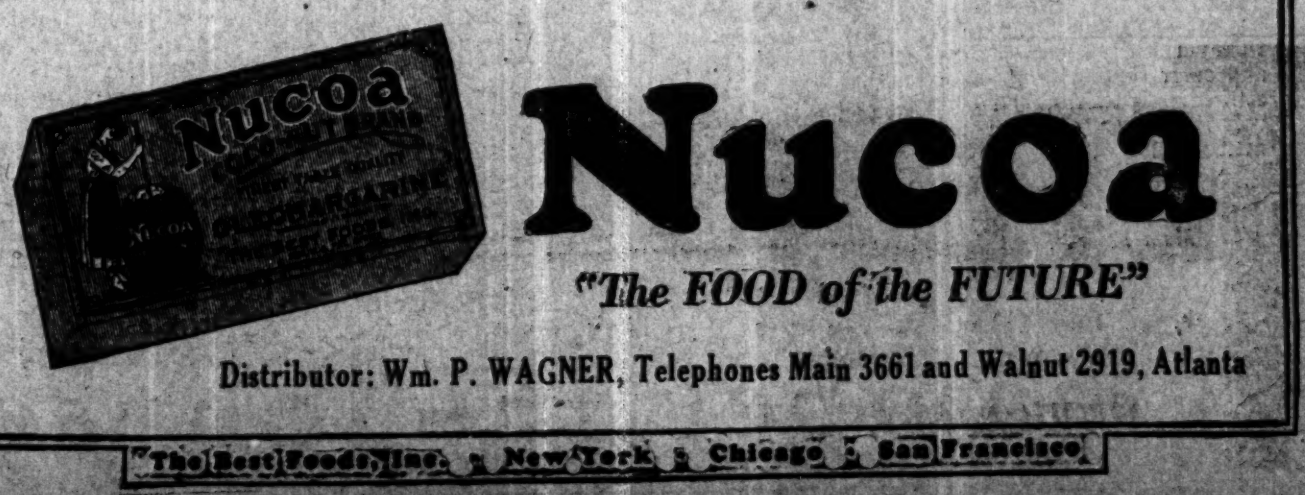

Your hostess at luncheon or dinner is likely to ask you—"How do you like my Nucoa Pats?"

And when she gives you a recipe for preparing or cooking some favorite delicacy—one of the ingredients is sure to be Nucoa.

Most significant of all—you'll notice that all these women make the same points for Nucoa—

1. CLEANLINESS. Nucoa is produced under model conditions of absolute sanitation, with every modern appliance to keep human hands away from it.
2. PURITY. Nucoa is a vegetable product. It is naturally wholesome. It is refined to the point of delicacy.
3. VITAMIN A. Nucoa contains the precious Vitamin A. Without this Vitamin the human body cannot grow. And the Vitamin content carries less in Nucoa than any other similar product.
4. FLAVOR. Nucoa is not exactly like anything else in flavor. It is individual and satisfying—and, by the way, so easily digested that hospitals prescribe it in specific cases.
5. UNIFORMITY. Nucoa is always the same. In control of every day's production of this great food is a responsible expert—a modern scientist on guard. This man, with his Master Standard and a national system of reports, protects the quality of every pound of Nucoa that goes into your home. It is a personal service to you.

Nucoa is a nation-wide standard food.
It sells everywhere at about 35 cents per pound.

Mrs. Rambo Presides At Education Meeting.

Mrs. Robert K. Rambo, recently elected president of the Atlanta Federation, presided over the meeting held Tuesday afternoon at her home in Druid Hills in aid of the citizens' educational movement. Harold Hirsch, chairman. A number of the other new officers of the federation were also present, these officers being Mrs. W. L. Percy, first vice president; Mrs. Oscar Palmour, second vice president; Mrs. Frank Neely, third vice president; Mrs. Frank McCormick, treasurer; Mrs. McCord Roberts, recording secretary; Mrs. Hal Heintz, corresponding secretary, and Miss Rosa Woodberry, parliamentary. Assisting Mrs. Rambo and the officers of the federation in their plans were Mrs. George M. Howman, president of the Atlanta Council of the Parent-Teacher associations, and Mrs. R. L. Turman, president of the Atlanta League of Women Voters.

The object of the meeting was to secure legislation at this session of the Georgia legislature to secure better educational facilities in Georgia, and also aid in the passage of laws to aid children, these laws embodied in the children's code commission, and to secure larger appropriations for the educational institutions of the state, and for the equalization of funds for better county schools.

Sponsored by Mrs. Clifford Walker, the counties of Georgia are being asked to send petitions signed by the voters of each county asking that such legislation be passed.

The Atlanta federation, one of the greatest factors and most earnest and untiring advocates for the education and protection of Georgia children, has asked the privilege of supplying the poster for Fulton county.

This meeting was to get the cooperation of the Parent-Teacher associations and League of Women Voters in securing the signatures for the Fulton county poster.

This poster will be placed in the capitol Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

This meeting promises fine results, both on account of the inspiration given from the great objects to be accomplished and on account of the proven ability of Mrs. Rambo, Mrs. McCormick, Mrs. Turman and the officers of the federation, who are among the acknowledged leaders in constructive civic work in the city.

The Love Cycle

BY MILDRED BARBOUR

INDICATION AND A CHOICE.

The vindication of Mansfield was a sensation. Weston, faced at the moment, after Davidson's confession and his own public, in which he outlined the circumstances which had called for his son-in-law's withdrawal from the Weston Motor Co. For the sake of the public, he apologized handsomely. The case was given widespread newspaper notice. Overnight, Mansfield became a hero and a martyr.

Very little was said regarding the previous acquaintanceship of Mansfield with the Davidsons, but Davidson, in his renunciation of the full confession of the blackmail plot of Mansfield's innocence and of the years of systematic blackmail.

The sympathy of the community was with Mansfield. All his old friends and acquaintances flocked back to him, assuring him that they had never believed any evil of him; and, that his temporary defection had been motivated by the desire not to show undue curiosity or to force an explanation of his withdrawal from their world.

Helen was in the seventh heaven of happiness. She was blissfully realizing an ambition to be the center of interest in an amazing drama.

As soon as Mansfield was vindicated, she said, wrapping her arms tenderly about him:

"I always felt in my heart that you were innocent. Hal, that's why I stayed with you instead of divorcing you. You must admit that few wives in similar circumstances would have been as loyal."

"Few," he admitted with tightened lips.

"Of course," she continued virtuously. "I am having to overlook a great deal. That awful Davidson woman, for instance. I will tell you, now that it is all past, that I knew instinctively that something like that was happening, but I overlooked it."

She beamed upon him triumphantly, obviously demanding commendation.

"You have been very fine, Helen," he said tonelessly.

"Naturally," she agreed complacently. "Any true woman would be."

"Any true woman would be," he echoed gravely.

She didn't suspect that he was thinking of Jane, of the dark hours when she had been a refuge, a source of strength and hope.

He had seen Jane only once since the triumphant hour when the dark cloud of suspicion had been cleared away.

ers are best seen in shadow or darkness.

"How long a time must it have taken to work this change, Mr. Burbank?" I interjected.

"Yes, and if the plant breeder were to take these two plants and cross them by placing the pollen of the orange daisy on the white daisy or vice versa, he would in a single generation produce hybrid daisies of different colors—orange, yellow and possibly pink, and with the colors differently arranged and combined."

After that by selection he would produce any color variation desired.

"Why should the hybrid seedlings vary so much?"

"Because these two plants have for centuries perhaps been storing up traits that they have acquired, and when they were combined by crossing, these inherited traits came out in the various new combinations in seedlings."

"It is like reading a book backwards, to bring out the life history of plants in this way," I said.

"Yes, every seed has stored within it the life history of the plant, with all the changes it has gone through during thousands of generations, which may have by repetition produced fixed inherited traits."

"Every variation in a plant which is produced by some change in its surroundings, gives it a possible advantage over others which have not adapted themselves to their environment, and this advantage enables it to live and propagate itself and hand down these traits to its descendants."

"What becomes of the plants that do not adapt themselves and do not vary?" I asked.

"Being fundamentalists they are not liable and receptive, and drop behind and disappear while the others push on ahead and this is—'Survival of the Fittest.'"

Miss Sallie Stewart Beloved Oxford Woman Dies After Brief Illness

Covington, Ga., June 24.—(Special.)—Miss Sallie Stewart, one of Oxford's best-loved women, passed away at her home there Wednesday morning at 4 o'clock after an illness of a few days.

She is survived by two sisters, Miss Emmie Stewart, of Oxford; Mrs. Angus Bird, of Guyton; one brother, Joseph Stewart, of Athens; four nephews, Dr. Will and Dr. Stewart Roberts, of Atlanta; Warren and Charlie Roberts, of Macon; one niece, Mrs. Tom Ross, of Macon.

Funeral services will be conducted by Rev. W. H. Lagarde at the Allen Memorial church in Oxford Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. Interment in Oxford cemetery.

Miss Stewart was a life-time resident of Oxford, beloved and prominent woman in church and civic affairs. The home of "Miss Sallie" and "Miss Emmie" as she and her sister were affectionately called, has long been one of the beacon lights of Oxford.

During the old Emory college days many young men found a real home here, and they will read with real sorrow of the death of Miss Sallie.

Since the organization of the Woman's Missionary society in 1878, she has been a loyal and devoted member, serving in an official capacity in the North Georgia conference and the local societies, and during the 44 years she has been absent from a single meeting, until she resigned a year ago on account of ill health. Her work among the children of the Sunday school and Missionary society was impressive.

She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Stewart, of Oxford.

Damage Done Tobacco Through Dudley Section By Electrical Storm

Macon, June 24.—The destruction of tobacco crops by hail near Dudley, Ga., was perhaps the greatest damage done by the wind, electrical, rain and hail storm Tuesday afternoon, according to reports received here.

Four houses were destroyed, the roof of a brick school house torn off and many trees were uprooted near Dudley, although it is reported that the business section of the town was not damaged. The tobacco crop of Bashinski and Powell suffered heavy damage from hail, but the crop was insured. Corn crops also suffered, it is said.

Telephone wires were reported down at Cross Keys, recreation park and Lakeside. There was some damage south of Macon also on the G. S. & F. railroad. The telegraph lines were not working in that territory either, the companies reported. Officials of the railroad line said that the storm moved northward and then swerved to the east reaching almost to the edge of the Macon railroad yards before its fury was spent.

Perry and Hawkinsville reported heavy rains and slight damage to trees and small buildings. Fort Valley had no rain. The storm extended into the peach belt but did little damage, the rain helping the crops, according to the growers.

Macon had one of the heaviest rainfalls of the season with seven-tenths of an inch of rain, but no damage from the storm.

'Wets' and 'Drys' Join Hands In Praising Reorganization Of Enforcement Machinery

Wheeler and Stayton, Heads of Opposing Camps, Unite in Commending Shake-up.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.
Washington, June 24.—Wets and dries, in agreement probably for the first time in history, have joined in praising the new reorganization of prohibition enforcement machinery as a step that will take it out of politics.
Speaking for the Anti-Saloon league, the most famous of the prohibition organizations, General Wayne B. Wheeler said:
"Reorganization of the prohibition enforcement department will make for efficiency and speed in law enforcement. It will doubtless eliminate politics from prohibition enforcement better than we will, of course, ask congress to put all the prohibition agents under civil service, so that this policy will be fixed by statute."
"Wets" Approve Changes.
Speaking for the leading wet organization, the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, Captain W. H. Stayton, national chairman, said:
"Reorganization of the prohibition enforcement unit marks the entry of common sense, good faith and good judgment in the enforcement of the dry law. The new arrangement does much to get rid of political influence. If it succeeds at all, it must succeed because its honesty and good points commend themselves so highly to the people that they will give it their moral backing."
Wheeler regards the new regulations looking to more rigid control of

A.P.P.O.A. FORMED BY CONVICTED HEAD OF NEW YORK 'DRYS'

Yonkers, N. Y., June 24.—William H. Anderson, whose leadership in the Anti-Saloon league was cut short when he was sent to Sing Sing prison to serve a term for forgery, has announced the formation of a new and all-American national reform organization, founded on the principles of protestantism and prohibition.
The new movement, according to Anderson, its founder and general secretary, will not duplicate any of the functions of Anti-Saloon league, but will improve upon it and supplement it. It will be more versatile than the league and other groups of reformers, Anderson says, and will invite into its fold all 100 per cent Protestant Americans who are in sympathy with its aims.
The name of the organization will be the American Prohibition Protestant Patriotic Protective Alliance, and it will be known as the A. P. P. O. A.

NEW ADDRESSES SHEET METAL LEADERS

High tribute was paid to Atlanta's progress and achievement during the past 60 years—Wednesday night by William D. Upshaw, congressman from the fifth Georgia district, before delegates to the twenty-first annual convention of the National Association of Sheet Metal Contractors. The address was at the banquet given at the principal social event of the convention, at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel.
The banquet closed the second of the four-day meeting of the association, which started Tuesday. Dancing was enjoyed following the banquet.
Declaring that the growth and progress of Atlanta has been nothing short of miraculous and that the "famed Atlanta spirit" has made her the greatest city in the entire southeast, Mr. Upshaw urged his hearers to emulate the spirit of this city. He stressed educational needs in lines of industry.
Delegates Praise City.
Many delegates were warm in their praise of Atlanta's hospitality and expressed gratification at the privilege of visiting "the metropolis of the south."
One of the principal speakers at Wednesday morning's session was Charles R. Hook, vice president of the American Rolling Mills company, said to be one of the great steel concerns in the world, having a capitalization of $80,000,000.
Mr. Hook recently returned from a trip to Europe where he studied the steel industry. He gave observations on the industry in England, Scotland, France and Italy.
Following sessions Tuesday delegates Wednesday plunged into the midst of business sessions and considered many phases of the industry in which they are particularly interested.

Prominent Speakers

Among prominent speakers during the afternoon sessions were John H. Hunsie, E. B. Langenberg, president of the association; W. H. Tunney; George L. Bennett, of Pittsburgh; and Edwin L. Seabrook.
Features of today's sessions will be election and installation of officers, reports of committees and addresses by R. H. Hill, of Detroit, and L. F. Kent, of Atlanta.
During the afternoon an automobile ride to Stone Mountain, where delegates will be given a most interesting and where they will view the
